HOW YOUNG & ROBERTS STARTED WOMEN'S HARDING "REPUBLICAN" CLUB

History Related in Great Detail as to How They Tried to Control Convention and Then Worked Against Choice of the Majority—Those Who Do Not Agree With Young & Roberts are "Bootleggers"—A Sneer for Esopus "Water Front" Voters.

The Women's Harding Republican Club of Ulster County held a three-hours meeting at the court house Thursday afternoon, during which it heard an extended report by Miss Grace Van B. Roberts of Highland, president of the club, telling how she and Mrs. Young started the club; addresses by Ernest Haight, editor of the Highland Post; Judge A. T. Clearwater of Kingston; Rear Admiral Francis J. Higginson, U. S. N., retired; Mrs. Van Ness, of New Jersey; brief talks by J. Wells Weaver of the town of Lloyd, Mrs. Edward Young of Milton, Mrs. Leah Weed of The Huntington, Kingston; Mrs. Clarence Eltinge and Miss Scott.

Through its president, Miss Roberts, the club called for the Rev. Dr. P. N. Chase to make a few remarks, but there was no response as he was not present.

The talks to the club members and husbands of some of them included a variety of subjects; reports were received from the officers of the club, of which the most extended was that of the president. Miss Roberts, who reviewed the work of the Women's Harding Republican Club, including its pre-primary activities, as a result of which in one election district of Ulster county, "in spite of the quality of its citizenship," the Harding Club workers "succeeded in getting one to two for Mr Weaver in the four hours we worked there."

About eighty people attended the meeting, nearly all of whom were women, the men present including only Rear Admiral Higginson, J. Wells Weaver and about eight others. All of the speakers received generous applause. Only about one-half of Judge Clearwater's address could be heard because of the noise made by coal handlers in placing coal in the court house cellars, the session of the Supreme court which had ended shortly before two o'clock having prevented the coal men from doing this work, with its accompanying noise, for the past five or six weeks.

Reports of Officers.

Miss Grace Van B. Roberts of Highland, president of the club, called the meeting to order at 2:20 o'clock, and asked that the minutes of the meeting at which the club was organized on August 8th, be read.

The minutes were read by Mrs. W. E Simmons of Kingston, recording secretary, who explained they were principally from memory because officers had not been elected until the middle of the afternoon.

At the conclusion of reading of the minutes, Miss Mary Haldane of The Huntington asked as an outsider to be allowed to say a few words, and complimented Mrs. Simmons, saying they were the best offhand minutes she had ever heard.

Mrs. Hyman Roosa of Kingston, who acted as campaign treasurer in the pre-primary campaign, read a report showing cash contributions of $42.50 and a like sum in one and two cent postage stamps.

Mrs. LeFevre, treasurer of the club, reported the treasury had $2, that it had not yet expended any money and was in a receptive mood.

History Of The Club.

Miss Roberts read what purported to be a history of the Harding Republican Club, prefacing it with the statement that she wanted to correct very "misleading statements" that the club represents only one or two persons and that she was responsible for the efforts made to prevent the renomination of Mr. Van Wagenen. The club started with 70 members and now has 175. The history was related as follows:

Young & Roberts Confer.

"I met Mrs. Young at a League of Woman Voters' meeting at Mrs. Norries in Staatsburg last July and told her that I thought Ulster county had been disgraced and that Mr. Van Wagenen should not be returned. Mrs. Young agreed with me and said if we were going to do anything we should have to do it at once as the time was getting short. I said, 'Very well, we must get to work.' Mrs. Young's reply was, 'they are working now.' I said, 'very good, we will have a meeting in a few days and we will get busy.' Mrs. Young's reply was, 'they are busy right now.'

Young & Roberts Travel.

"The result of that conversation was that Mrs. Young and I traveled over the county to find out what other people were thinking and we found this condition. That large groups of Republicans were aware that Holt Winfield was to be the Democratic nominee and had determined to do nothing and say nothing but simply vote for the Democratic candidate. And when I asked them why it was not better to have a good Republican nominee, they all replied 'the organization won't have him.'

Young & Roberts Threaten.

"Our next step was to see the county chairman. We told him we did not want a Democratic assemblyman, that no decent Republican would vote for Van Wagenen, that people generally felt that he had disgraced the county and to nominate him we felt would be to jeopardize Republican success, that if he would give us another candidate we would work for even a very seasoned and unattractive one rather than have Mr. Van Wagenen. Mr. Elting said that he did not select the candidates, and he said, the way to do was to come to the convention and take a hand in the selection.

Young & Roberts Seek Davis.

"As a result of this I did go to the convention as a delegate, but meanwhile we looked about for a candidate and asked Millard Davis to allow us to present his name. Mr. Davis came down to see Mrs. Young and myself and said that his activities would not allow him to take up any further work.

Young & Roberts Organize.

"We then felt in order to make it attractive to a candidate we should be an organization rather than individuals, so we held a meeting in the court house and the Harding Republican Club was formed August 8th.

Young & Roberts Bolt.

"The day following, Mr. Winfield was nominated by the Democrats, also the day following Mr. Davis found he could run and with only two days to work polled 90 votes at the convention, August 11, an excellent showing. We did not feel that it would be quite the thing for Mr. Davis to run in the primaries after his defeat in the convention, but waited to see if he was going to do so, and when that was settled, we asked Mr. Weaver to be a candidate, which at great sacrifice to his personal affairs he very splendidly consented to do. Mr. Weaver would have preferred that we find some one else but he did not hesitate, he felt that the need for a candidate was great and the fact that he was strong with the farmers, helped overcome the brief time we had for his campaign. If that makes me responsible I was simply one of many who felt that way. All we did was to bring that opposition together, and in the work of organizing, no one has done more, been more self-sacrificing and enthusiastic, has put more into their work, than our corresponding secretary, Mrs. Clarence Elting."

After reading lengthy extracts from a speech of President Coolidge and the rule adopted by the county committee requiring members to be loyal, which rule she said was "not American," Miss Roberts resumed.

Most Politicians Are Bootleggers.

"Now the whole trouble in this county is just here. We have let other people vote for us, think for us, and act for us and we have gotten just what we deserve. Our county chairman is right, the majority of the active politicians in this county are bootleggers. He did not say that, he said 'the majority of the voters in the county were wet.' But there are no wets or drys any more; there are bootleggers or loyal Americans. I don't really think our county chairman is so wet myself and I don't think our voters are wet. The county is in the grasp of some hidden sinister power.

"It is now up to us, we could have won this election had we gotten at it earlier or, late as it was, had we all of us worked. I want to tell you about Esopus.

River Front Citizenship.

"We learned the day before the primaries that the first and second districts of Esopus had not been canvassed and five of us hurried there. Mrs. Elting with Mrs. Burwell took Sleightsburgh and there in spite of the quality of its citizenship, (It is right on the river front,) they succeeded in getting one to two for Mr. Weaver in the four hours we worked there. In Port Ewen Miss Dayton, Mrs. Weaver and myself went about and there we won for Mr. Weaver. These are right at Mr. Van Wagenen's door so to speak and Mr. Winfield is also from Esopus. We found that people who would vote for Weaver had not been told about the primaries and many would not have gone to them at all. But the Van Wagenen people knew the next day was Primary Day and they were going to vote.

Typical of the County.

"I feel that this is typical of the county and that with thorough work by good captains we would find splendid citizens who would vote right. Let nothing I say be understood to apply to Kingston. Canvassing there is quite another matter. With the tactics employed by the other side Kingston did much better than I had expected. Splendid work was done in Kingston by our members.

"Ladies and gentlemen we must have organization. We must have able captains in each township who will put this work first for awhile. We can easily do it if we try. Had the prohibitionists voted in the primaries we would have just about tied the vote, and we did all of that in about one month you memember. Why could we nearly beat the regular organization in that time? (And it is known they never worked so hard before.) Because we were right."

Must Not Talk "Flippantly."

DR. STEINMETZ DIES SUDDENLY

World Famous Electrical Genius, as He Is Eating Breakfast Moment After Saying How Much Better He Feels, Gasps and Sinks Back Dead.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Dr. Charles Proteus Steinmetz, well known electrical wizard, died at his home here shortly before 8:30 this morning.

The end came very suddenly. He had been ill less than two weeks and during the last few days had been reported as rapidly recovering.

Dr. Steinmetz was born at Breslau, Germany, April 9, 1865. He came to this country 34 years ago.

Dr. Steinmetz, for several years had been chief electrical engineer at the General Electric Company's plant in this city. He was regarded the world over as an electrical genius.

Schenectady was shocked when news of his death became known. He always had taken a great interest in the progress of this city.

Only a few months ago Dr. Steinmetz invented miniature thunder and lightning. This was considered one of his masterpieces. So real was the lightning that under the hand of Dr. Steinmetz small trees erected in his laboratory could be demolished.

The electrical wizard was forced to take to his bed a week ago last Saturday following his return from a trip to the Pacific coast. At that time it was said he was suffering from a heavy cold and exhaustion, believed to have been brought on by his cross continent trip.

Dr. Steinmetz was being given his breakfast when he gasped and sank back on the pillow, dead.

Just a minute before the end he had remarked to the nurse that he felt the best since he was taken sick. It is believed death was due to heart disease.

No information concerning Dr. Steinmetz's death could be obtained at his home, but it was announced that a statement would be issued later by officials at the General Electric plant.

Dr. Steinmetz left Schenectady on September 1 for the Pacific coast. On the way he delivered numerous lectures in the middle-western states.

Dr. Steinmetz, who was in his fifty-ninth year, was regarded as the foremost electrical expert in the world next to Thomas Alva Edison.

It was the life work of Dr. Steinmetz to make electricity the universal fuel power of America. He was constantly experimenting with this end in view.

Dr. Steinmetz was the author of many books, including "Theory and Calculation of Alternating Current Phenomena," "The Fundamental Elements of Electrical Engineering" and "General Lectures on Electrical Engineering." He was born in Breslau, Germany, and was educated in Germany and Switzerland. He arrived in America in 1889 penniless and started in at the bottom of the ladder. He was employed first by a firm in Yonkers, N. Y., which was absorbed by the General Electric Works, the company for which Dr. Steinmetz was working when he died.

Dr. Steinmetz was a Socialist and in 1915 was elected president of the Municipal Council on that ticket. He was nominated for the state engineer on the Socialist ticket but was defeated. During the war he served as member of the naval advisory board. He held degrees from a number of educational institutions.

He had been three times appointed a member of the Schenectady board of education and at one time was president of the board. He was a member of the board at the time of his death. Some years ago he was a member of the city planning committee. He took an active part in the planning of new sections of the city.

Dr. Steinmetz studied electrical engineering and chemistry in Breslau, Berlin, Zurich and Switzerland.

In 1902 he was awarded a degree of A. M. by Harvard and the following year Union College at Schenectady conferred upon him the degree of Ph.D. In 1902 he taught the science of electricity in Union College.

He was a warm personal friend of Thomas A. Edison. Less than a year ago Mr. Edison and a party of other leading electrical authorities were entertained by Dr. Steinmetz at his laboratory in the General Electric plant. It was at that time that Dr. Seinmetz showed Mr. Edison how he could produce thunder and lightning. After hearing the thunder and seeing the lightning flash about the room, Mr. Edison called the invention "wonderful."

EDISON SHOCKED BY DEATH OF STEINMETZ

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Orange, N. J., Oct. 26.—Thomas A. Edison was shocked at the news today of the passing of Charles P. Steinmetz, electrical wizard.

"I regret very much the death of Dr. Steinmetz. The world has lost one of the greatest practical mathematicians, and the electrical industry will miss one of its shining lights."

Temple Emanuel Dutch Supper.

The ladies of Temple Emanuel will hold a Dutch supper in the Sunday School rooms on Tuesday evening, October 30. As the seating capacity of the Sunday School room is limited and the tickets for the supper are selling rapidly those who desire to attend should secure tickets as early as possible. Tickets may be procured at the store of S. Cohen's Sons uptown and from Mrs. Sam Mann, chairman of the affair, downtown.

DEATH CLOSES OLNEY'S CAREER

After having lived for thirty years under an assumed name, an old man who dropped dead in Bridgeport, Conn., eleven days ago, was revealed to have been a brother of the late Peter B. Olney, socially and politically prominent in New York, and Richard Olney, who was attorney general and secretary of state in the cabinet of President Cleveland, says The New York Times of today. In deference to his own wish he was buried on last Friday under his real name—Frederick Anthony Olney—in the family plot at Oxford, Mass., where rest many of the Olneys who have made the name famous in New England and the nation for generations.

Investigation by The Freeman today leaves no doubt that the Frederick A. Olney described in The Times is the same Frederick A. Olney who conducted a hardware store on Wall street from about 1885 to 1890 when he left Kingston suddenly under a financial cloud which involved funds of one of the local churches with which he was connected.

According to The Times, Frederick Anthony Olney was the youngest brother of Peter P., Richard and George Olney, all of whom are now dead. Peter B. and Richard became honored public figures. George lived and died in quiet respectability and Frederick, so far as the public knew, just dropped out of view many years ago. Why he discarded a distinguished name, why he became Frederick O. Anthony, sometime salesman for a Bridgeport nursery and sometime itinerant peddler of mill end bargains probably never will be revealed now.

The old man had his own romantic version of his history, a version that he confided to a few friends when he felt old age creeping upon him. It is not unnatural that in that version he should have found a bit of glory for himself—something to gild the end of a life of obscurity and misfortune. It was "vindication" that old Frederick wanted when once he was in his grave—"vindication" because he said it was to save the family name that he had taken another. And by "saving" it, he meant, so he said, that he had assumed the blame for the misdeed of a relative and so had to make himself an outcast.

But nothing to substantiate that story has transpired through inquiry among the survivors of the line. Most of them if they ever heard of Fred Olney at all, only knew, they say, that he was a brother of Peter and Richard and that the whole family shared the burden of his keep. Some say that they never heard of him at all. The only one who shed any real light on Frederick's history was the present Peter B. Olney, son of Peter B., who once was district attorney of New York and himself a referee in bankruptcy.

There never was any martyrdom for Fred to assume, said Peter B. Olney; there never was any disgrace for Fred to bear except such as he brought upon himself. According to Peter B., his father's younger brother, Fred, "was always a ne'er-do-well. I know that Peter and Richard put up money for him and helped him many years ago, when he was in financial difficulty and that both contributed to his support. My father was always exceedingly reticent and I never tried to question him about it. Fred was apparently shiftless and was a sore spot with both my father and Richard Olney."

Mr. Olney said what little he had learned had come from chance remarks dropped by his brother, continuing:

"They were to the effect that Fred was in some financial difficulty, whether bankruptcy or what I never knew, and that Richard and my father were both forced to pay a considerable sum of money to help him out."

Another who talked a little about Frederick Olney was Mrs. Gertrude Stevens Cleveland, wife of Eben Cleveland of Webster, Mass., and for a number of years acted as the family's representative in taking care of her Uncle Frederick when he was ill or in financial straits in Bridgeport. Mrs. Cleveland, her father and her son, Eben Cleveland, all visited Bridgeport after "Frederick O. Anthony" died.

"Frederick O. Anthony was really Frederick Anthony Olney, brother of Richard and Peter B.," she said. "I looked after hoim at the request of my brother. The family all contributed to his support. His trouble was all so long ago I really know nothing about it. I never heard of his death-bed story of martyrdom."

Among the persons in Bridgeport who had heard that story in the course of eight or ten years "Anthony" had lived there were Mrs. Florence Allard of 794 Lafayette avenue, with whom he boarded for a time; Guy LeBar, now living at 998 Glenwood avenue, who shared a room with "Anthony" at the Allard house; Mrs. Emilie C. Minard, with whom "Anthony" boarded at 259 Courtland street at the time of his death, and Dr. O. L. Massinger, who treated "Anthony" several years ago when he was threatened with death from pneumonia and Mrs. Cleveland came to see him.

"Anthony's" story came out after he was seized with a heart attack on Monday morning, October 14, on the Boston Post Road at Fairfield, Conn., and died in an automobile while he was being hurried to a physician by a passing automobilist. Because of doubt as to his identity and fear that he would be buried under a false name after he had asked friends to see that he got his own at the end, Mrs. Mennard appealed to Probate Judge Paul J. Miller of Bridgeport. Mrs. Cleveland also visited Judge Miller. The judge learned that the dead man's only tangible estate was $300 in the First National Bank of Bridgeport. He appointed that bank administrator and gave permission for the removal of the body to Massachusetts for burial. Judge Miller said he thought from what he learned of the man's history that there might be some question of his right to share in the Olney estate and that he therefore thought it wise to name an administrator.

It was learned that Frederick Olney had a wife, Mrs. Effie L. Olney, and three daughters, the Misses Ruth, Perces and Isabel, living at 16 Howland street, Cambridge, Mass. Whether they knew anything of their father's history or that he had lived under an assumed name was not disclosed, says The Times.

There is no doubt that the Olney described by The Times is the same Olney who left Kingston hurriedly about 1890. He came here in 1884 or 1885 and was engaged in the hardware business on Wall street. For a time he resided on the east side of Clinton avenue, between John and Main streets, and later purchased a house on Elmendorf street, where he resided. His church membership was under the name of Frederick Anthony Olney, and his wife's name, according to records of the county clerk's office, was Effie L. Olney. Mrs. Olney was a woman of splendid attainments and character and made many friends while in Kingston. After her husband's disappearance she and her family removed to Springfield, Mass. During Mr. Olney's residnce in Kingston, it was generally known that he was a brother both of Peter B. and Richard Olney, who were then very prominent politically.

FRANCE ACCEPTS REPARATIONS CONFERENCE INVITATION BUT NAMES CONDITIONS THAT SEEM TO BAR HUGHES PLAN

Insists That Versailles Treaty Be Basis and That Inter-allied Reparations Commission be Supreme—Hughes Announces U. S. is Ready to Enter New International Conference and Baldwin Appeals for Such.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Oct. 26.—The French foreign office announced today that the government accepted Premier Baldwin's proposal for conference of experts on condition it is organized under provisions of the Treaty of Versailles and under the auspices of the Inter-Allied reparations commission.

Premier Baldwin, of England revealed in a speech last night that England is seeking such a conference and at the same time, it was made known in Washington that United States is willing to participate.

While the foreign office statement had the outward appearance of a concession, it was pointed out in authoritative quarters that the French government was not receding from its original position upon reparations.

France's conditions for a conference are such that they are regarded as a rejection of Secretary of State Hughes's plan for an international conference to fix Germany's capacity for indemnity payments.

The officials confirmed that France is willing for the inter-allied reparations commission to examine Germany's capacity for indemnity payment, but flatly refused to permit German delegates to participate in the discussions until normal conditions are restored in the Ruhr.

Foreign office officials said that, under the Versailles treaty, commission has the right to examine and fix the amount Germany can pay; also to call experts into conference.

A foreign office statement said in part:

"France would be very happy if United States sent an expert to cooperate on the reparations issue."

According to the foreign office, France agrees to the formation of a separate Rhineland republic although it does not accord with the Versailles treaty. French officials take the view they cannot hinder the German population from manifesting its desire if the Berlin government shows incompetency in dealing with conditions.

Members of his entourage quoted Premier Poincare as saying he was willing to "go to the utmost limits within the Versailles treaty," but was unwilling to concede any of the terms in that pact. The premier was quoted further as saying he would not make such concessions because he did not know where they might end.

Washington, Oct. 26.—First despatches from Paris today stating that the French government will accept the proposal for an international conference to deal with the troublesome reparations controversy—considered by Secretary Hughes to be the crux of nearly all of Europe's present turmoil and distress—were received in Washington with undisguised pleasure and satisfaction.

Administration officials, however, were cautious about commenting upon this striking about-face by Premier Poincare and his "bitter end" associates. Before considering such a conference already an accomplished fact, they wish to examine more closely the "conditions" under which the French acceptance is reported.

The big point which the United States will insist upon being absolutely and explicitly clear before entering the proposed conference is that it shall not attempt to deal with the question of debts owed by the Allies to the United States.

France has always been willing to enter a conference designed to deal with the liquidation of her indebtness in conjunction with reparations, but the American position has been that the debts owed by France have nothing to do with Germany's ability and capacity to pay a required sum.

Secretary Hughes laid particular emphasis upon the point in his note to Lord Curzon, pointing out that so far as this government is concerned the Allied debts are plain "borrowed money" and must be repaid as in any ordinary business deal.

London, Oct. 26.—Press and public today approved Premier Stanley Baldwin's appeal for an international conference to discuss the reparations issue.

The fact that Secretary of State Hughes had expressed America's willingness to enter into such a meeting was emphasized.

The premier's proposal was revealed in his speech before the Tory conference at Plymouth last night. It was supported, however, by advices from Washington containing official announcement by the state department diplomatic conversations had been in progress and that the United States government had reiterated its willingness to take part in such a meeting.

There are indications France will make concessions and that a general conference may be arranged before Christmas to take up the whole reparations question.

The situation in Germany is acute with secession and communism spreading. It is believed France is beginning to take alarm over the conditions in Germany.

Chancellor Stresemann speaking at Hagen, declared Germany cannot and will not pay indemnity so long as France holds the Ruhr.

The St. James Men's Club.

The regular meeting of the Men's Club of the St. James Church will be held at the church on Monday evening, October 29, at 8 o'clock for business, entertainment, refreshments and a good time.

LAST EXPOSITION NETTED $1,542.20

From the annual balance sheet of the Kingston Fair Grounds, Inc., it appears that the recent Kingston Exposition, held under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce and the Fair Grounds Association yielded a net profit of $1,542.20. The profits were divided equally between the Chamber of Commerce and the Fair Grounds Association and the latter reports having received $771.10 as its share.

WATER EXPERTS FIGHT BUGS IN RESERVOIR

Clear City Supply of Cucumber and Oil Flavors.

Engineers of the New York city water department are quelling an insurrection of the synura, says the New York Herald. This minute organism, which has a series of flavors running from cucumber to cod liver oil, suddenly began to manifest itself in the Ashokan reservoir, but was attacked so swiftly with copper sulphate that it has not been able to march on New York.

No trace of the various flavors of the synura have reached the city water mains since January of last year, but two or three times they have showed signs of multiplying rapidly and have been kept down to safe numbers by prompt treatment with copper sulphate. They usually multiply fastest in fall and winter.

"The synura have flavored a good deal of water on Long Island this year," said Dr. Frank Hale, bacteriologist of the water department, "but the flavor has not been detected in city water for more than a year."

GLASS DEMONSTRATION AT ARMORY SATURDAY

A demonstration of "Armor Glass" will be given Saturday at 12 o'clock at the state armory. The qualities of the bullet proof and non-shatterable glass will be demonstrated.

A special invitation is also extended to motorists and car dealers to investigate the glass, which is said to be tougher than plate glass and as clear and is shatter-proof and scatter-proof. In the demonstration a steel-jacketed .45 calibre pistol bullet will be fired point-blank at the glass to prove its qualities.

INSULIN'S DISCOVERERS GET NOBEL PRIZE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Oct. 26—The 1923 Nobel prize for medicine was awarded to Dr. Banting and Professor McLeob, of Toronto University, for the discovery of insulin, said a Central News dispatch from Stockholm today. Insulin is used in treatment for diabetes.

SUPREME COURT TERM ENDED

Jury Awards Moncisco $2,500—Zeiss Action Against Dittmar is Held Open.

The October term of supreme court was adjourned sine die Thursday by Judge Nichols, who has been holding the term. A large number of cases have been disposed of during the three weeks' session and a number of others were disposed of by settlement.

A verdict in the sum of $2,500 for plaintiff was given in the action brought by Tony Moncisco against Anita Swartz, an action brought to recover damages for personal injuries sustained when plaintiff's motorcycle was hit by defendant's Cadillac car a short distance above Phoenicia, resulting in its turning over and injuring plaintiff and his wife. An action has also been brought by Mrs. Moncisco who was also injured. The action was brought to recover $5,000. John W. Eckert appeared for plaintiff. Howard Chipp for defendant.

An action brought by George Zeiss against Edwin Dittmarr to recover for damages to plaintiff's car by reason of a collision at the Napanoch bridge on July 8, 1923, was taken up for trial before the court and jury. There was no appearance on the part of defendant. Plaintiff claimed that his car was damaged and that he lost the use of his car for several days, sustaining a loss of $183.95. Dittmar was later arrested on a charge of having left the scene of an accident without giving his name. He was held to await the action of the grand jury.

After testimony had been taken in regard to the accident, Judge Nichols withdrew the case from the jury and allowed the plaintiff to submit additional testimony in regard to the identity of the driver of the car. Plaintiff did not secure the license number of the Chevrolet car which struck him but other witnesses did and on this information defendant was apprehended. Judge Nichols held that further testimony in regard to the identity of the driver of the offending car would be required and held the case open for such additional testimony.

PROCLAIM NOV. 10 DAISY TAG DAY

Mayor Crane has proclaimed Saturday, November 10, as Daisy Tag Day for the entire city, and on that day the members of the American Legion Auxiliary will sell daisies throughout the city, the proceeds of which will go toward defraying the expense of construction of the American Legion building here.

Mrs. R. Frederic Chidsey has been appointed chairman of American Legion Auxiliary committee having charge of the Daisy Tag Day, and the sale will be conducted by a large committee of members of the auxiliary.

The auxiliary will follow the Daisy Tag Day with a dance at the New York State Armory on Monday evening, November 12.

Armistice Day occurs on Sunday, November 11. By general acceptance, Armistice time has become American Legion time, and as Armistice Day this year falls on Sunday, the Legion and the Legion Auxiliary will avail themselves of the day preceding and the day following for their special activities.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

PROUD WOOD

A table and a lamp and a chair were talking when all was quiet in the house.

"I Am Very Nice."

All the members of the family had gone to bed, for the table and the lamp and the chair could never have talked if anyone had been around to hear them.

Although, it is true, no one could have understood them, for the talk of a table and a lamp and a chair is very, very strange. Only the objects themselves can understand what they say.

"I am very nice," said the lamp. "Of course I suppose I should be more modest and wait for some one else to compliment me, but if I did wait I might have to wait too long, and that would never do.

"I think I shall always make sure of being complimented by not waiting for others to compliment me, but by complimenting myself. Don't you think that shows wisdom?"

"Doubtless it does, doubtless it does," said the table.

"But of course, lamp," the table continued, "you're not so nice when you haven't been filled. You're an oil lamp, and you have to be filled quite often."

"I'm not nice when I'm not filled," said the lamp. "That is perfectly true. But, then, it is not my fault. I cannot fill myself with oil.

"I have to be carried out to the woodhouse where the oil is kept and filled there, and I can't do that myself. One would hardly expect all that of a lamp. I think I do enough as it is.

"Even if that should be expected of a lamp, it would be impossible for me to do.

"So I say, 'never expect too much and then you won't be disappointed.' I don't suppose that thought is original with me, but, then, though I'm a bright lamp when lighted, I'm not supposed to think up great and wise things.

"I'm supposed to give light to people when they read wise books and funny books, and when they look at pictures, and when they talk and play games.

"I give cheer during the long winter evenings. And if, by chance, I have not been filled and so go out, I'm sorry about it.

"I hate to hear the disappointed people say:

"'Oh, dear, that lamp was forgotten about today.' Yes, it makes me sad.

"It is as though one expected a person to do a lot of work on an empty stomach to expect a lamp to burn that has not been filled.

"But I compliment myself, for I'm a good, friendly old lamp, and I give an excellent light.

"Of course young wicks get excited sometimes, and then I burn unevenly, but accidents will happen, and the best of us make mistakes.

"That isn't so very original, either, but it's true.

"Well," said the table, "I am what might be called a proud piece of wood. Not only am I used to hold books and games and you, my good friend lamp, but when people want to have good luck they knock on me."

"They do the same to me," said the chair. "I'm glad I'm a wooden chair, for I heard of a dentist's chair which was far from being a favorite.

"In fact, a little girl made up these lines about it:

'It takes a lot of do and dare
To actually go to a dentist's chair,
But once you're really, truly there,
You feel as brave as a fine big bear.'

Of course she showed by that verse that while she was proud of herself after she went to the dentist's chair she didn't actually feel any love or affection for the chair!

"They Knock on Me."

"But when people say:

"'I haven't had a cold for six months,' they knock on me to make sure that their boasting won't bring them one. I don't suppose it means anything, but it's a nice compliment to the Wood family."

"Indeed it is," said the table, "and so I think the Wood family may well be proud of itself. I know I am. I feel as pleased as can be when people give me a little rap when they've boasted as though I'd protect them and see that their good luck continued.

"All nonsense, perhaps, but it's a source of joy to the family, and so while creatures call me a table I think of myself always as PROUD WOOD!"

PICKLIN' TIME

A most tasty pickle which is not very common is prepared with green cucumbers. Fill a jar with the small cucumbers, well washed and soaked in ice water to have them crisp; add a slice or two of onion and four stalks of celery to each can; now fill the jar with boiling hot vinegar, using a half-cupful of sugar to each quart jar. Seal and set away to season.

Chili Sauce.—Take fifty medium-sized ripe tomatoes, half as many onions, four red peppers, seeds and fiber removed; one small bunch of celery, one quart of vinegar, one tablespoonful each of whole allspice, whole cloves, with the heads removed, whole cinnamon, three cupfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of salt and one grated nutmeg. Scald and peel and chop the tomatoes and put them to drain in a colander. Chop all the vegetables, tie the spices in a small cheesecloth bag and cook all together for two and one-half hours. Fill in bottles while hot and seal airtight.

Uncooked Tomato Relish.—Take a peck of ripe tomatoes, peel and chop and drain in a colander. When drained add two cupfuls each of chopped celery and onions, four red peppers, two cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of mustard seed, one-half cupful of salt, one teaspoonful of black pepper, one teaspoonful of paprika. Mix well and fill jars to overflowing. Seal and keep in a cool place. Ready to be used in six weeks.

Green Tomato Mincemeat.—There are any number of people who are very fond of this kind of mincemeat. Chop a peck of green tomatoes, add a few apples, five pounds of sugar, two pounds of raisins and currants, one and one-half pounds of suet, one cupful of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls each of salt, allspice and cinnamon, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of grated nutmeg. Mix the salt with the tomatoes and let stand over night. In the morning drain off the juice and mix with the other ingredients; boil for a half-hour and seal while hot. This makes seven quarts.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, Oct. 25.—The Rev. and Mrs. K. M. Reynolds left Monday morning for Hensonville and Windham, Greene county, to attend a meeting of the clergymen and also the district conference.

An installation service of the officers of the Ladies' Aid Society was held in the M. E Church on Sunday night, the following officers being installed for the ensuing year; President, Mrs. Fred Gulnack; vice president, Mrs. Spencer Jones; secretary, Mrs. John Davis; treasurer, Miss May Bogart

Mr and Mrs. Robert Bedell of Grantwood, N. J., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brooks of Gilboa and Mrs. Virgil Brooks of Kingston spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Brooks.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Lyons and Frank Lyons spent a few days the past week in Middletown, visiting relatives

On Monday evening George Sickler was tendered a surprise in honor of his birthday by his brother, John Sickler, and family, also Jean Roth, Harold Howland and Charles Sickler and Vera Van Steenburg. Refreshments were served and a good time enjoyed by all.

Plans have been made to have electric lights installed in the M. E. Church at once.

HIGH WOODS.

High Woods, Oct. 25.—Hallowe'en night, October 31, at High Woods Dutch Reformed Church hall, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society will hold a Hallowe'en social and supper. There will be home made candy for sale and a supper for which the ladies of the High Woods Reformed Church, it is said, cannot be excelled. Supper will be served from 7 o'clock until all are served.

HIGHLAND

Highland, Oct. 25.—Wednesday evening the D. of A. of this place held its regular meeting with acting councilor, Mrs. W. Constable, presiding. There were present 50 members and business went off like clock work. They made arrangements for celebrating their 10th anniversary on November 7th, after the regular meeting by giving a masquerade. Every one who is invited is most cordially requested to mask. At the last meeting a big feed was given at the close of work. Mrs. Almina Freer had been engaged by Lorin Schantz, a trustee of the order, to prepare a hot roast beef dinner and it was steaming hot when served. And there was the roast beef, mashed potatoes, delicious gravy, cabbage salad, and a relish, biscuits, brick ice cream, home made cake and coffee and all ate as if they had not eaten in a month. Everything was so grand. After the big eat Mrs. R. H. Decker advanced to the rostrum at the request of the acting councilor, and gave some very interesting and humorous remarks and then expressing the pleasure of all to the popular host, Mr. Schantz and the Pythian Hall just rang loud and clear with three cheers for the member who had been so lavish to all and to whom all felt so grateful.

Miss Lillian Chudleigh of Washington avenue has been engaged as pipe organ player in M. E. Church, in place of Mrs. L. Rhodes, who resigned.

Several from this place attended the county Sunday school convention last Tuesday at Kingston. It was very interesting.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Osterhoudt and children were in Highland Falls last Friday attending an Epworth League meeting.

Few of our hunters were busy last week with Newburgh friends at Tupper Lake. We do not know how succesful they were.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram Rhodes had guests past week from Arlington, New Jersey.

The druggist, Mr. Muller, with a friend from Poughkepsie tried their skill at hunting up in the Adirondack.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Harcourt had as their guest past week Frank Harcourt of New York city.

Look out for the D. of A. masquerade after their meeting November 7. Refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Feeter spent some time past week at Claryville, their summer home.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary J. Atkins, mother of Chester and Allen Atkins of this place and DuBois Atkins of New Paltz and Effie Atkins, daughter, was held from the late home Sunday afternoon and largely attended. She was highly esteemed by everyone. The floral pieces were many and most beautiful. She was an active worker of Presbyterian Church and its societies as long as her health permitted. The Rev. Mr. Dalton, pastor of said church, was officiating clergyman. Interment was in New Paltz cemetery.

Chester Atkins is confined to his home by illness. His many friends are hoping for his speedy recovery. Mrs. Bush is the nurse in attendance.

The stores of this place all close now at 6 o'clock.

A lecture will be given in M. E. Church on November 9th by George W. Goudy, who has traveled extensively through Japan. This should be very interesting. He also will show views of the different places. This is under auspices of Epworth League.

T. Edward DuBois of New York city, also George DuBois of Freeport, L. I., have been guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theron DuBois, on Maple avenue.

Captain R. H. Decker was in Poughkeepsie on business Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Freer are now living in the flat over Erichsen's meat market. It is some sightly place.

November 2, Highland Epworth Union will hold forth in the First M. E. Church at 8 o'clock. Everyone invited to hear the fine speaker from Hudson, the Rev. James H. Bennett.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Fisher had recent guests from Wallkill at their home on Vineyard avenue.

Auxiliary Club will hold its regular meeting Friday afternoon, November 2, in the M. E. Church parlor at 2:30. Members cordially requested to be present. Names of hostesses will be announced from pulpit Sunday.

Tuesday evening there was a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Terpening in honor of a daughter's birthday and some of the relatives' anniversary. They had a rainy time but lots of sport, dancing and games and refreshments.

The "Punch" When You Need It

Not just how many miles will it last, but also how will it perform while it's on the job? That's the thing to think about when you're buying a battery.

A battery on which you can rely—a battery which will have the "punch" when you need it—is a mighty good investment.

REVIVING PROTECTIVE POLICY

Step by step British producers are coming around to acknowledgment of the soundness of the American principles of a protective tariff. In a recent letter to the London Times Sir Henry Brittain, M. P. and ex-Parliament, said that "The British trade is an industry where the individual motorist can do much to lessen the prevailing unemployment. Every British tire bought means at least a day's employment for a British employe."

He also states the basis for the need of a protective tariff policy, on which our prosperity has always depended. Every suit of clothes "Made in America" means employment for American labor. Every article of any kind "Made in America" means employment for both American labor and American capital. And every day of employment at good wages means one more good consumer of American products. Buying things "Made in America" starts an endless chain of transactions, each seller of one article becoming the buyer of another. The wage earner in one industry becomes the employer in another.

It is stated by Sir Harry Brittain that in 1922 some $24,000,000 was spent by British motorists for foreign tires, and that at a time when there were millions of British workmen out of jobs and receiving doles from the Government from the taxpayers. We had much the same experience in 1913-14 after the Democratic tariff law was enacted. We bought goods made abroad, and let our own workmen walk the streets. If our workmen keep their senses on election day, they will "never go there any more."

Lloyd George has his wish and is really "a land where the people can work with both hands," but by all accounts he has mostly seen the workers using their hands to applaud at his appearance.

The settlement of a seven-weeks coal strike includes a cut in the price of coal ranging from 9 to 13 per cent. This has not happened in Czecho-Slovakia, about 1,000 miles from Pennsylvania.

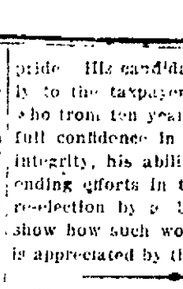
Experimental fasting at the University of Chicago has been reported to be helpful to health. Good! Fast at judicious intervals. Yes, sir. The kind that hurts is the kind of fasting during longer periods for lack of sufficient good food.

A dispatch from Manila states that Moros recently massacred an entire village of nine men of the Philippine Constabulary and three school teachers. The concluding sentence of the dispatch is significant: "The withdrawal of United States troops has been suggested." Some of the Filipino leaders are convinced of their ability to govern the islands when everything is running smoothly, but when trouble comes they are quick to call on American sources for aid.

The daughter of the American Revolution has been found in Mrs. Frances Holbrook of Oneonta, N. Y. Mrs. Holbrook, who is nearly 90 years old, was born when her father, James Clark, a soldier of the Revolution, was 77 years old. Obviously a man of 77 was old 90 years ago could have been a boy of 27 years old when the Revolutionary War ended and been old enough to have served all through it. Two generations it was long as these two were sufficient to bridge the distance from that day to this.

Ten years' experience as a member of the board of supervisors has made Fred Wiedemann a valuable asset to the city of Kingston and the county of Ulster, and his renomination as supervisor by the Republican party in the Fourth Ward should be followed by election by a larger majority than ever before. Mr. Wiedemann always has been faithful to the interests of the city and county, and every home-owner and every rent-payer has profited because of his staunch support of policies which are in the interest of the taxpayer. His record as supervisor is most creditable and one in which any man or the voters of any ward may feel justifiable pride. His candidacy appeals strongly to the taxpayers and rent-payers who from ten years' experience have full confidence in his judgment, his integrity, his ability and his never-ending efforts in their behalf. His re-election by a big majority will show how such work in public office is appreciated by the people.

Thoroughly acquainted with city affairs through faithful service in the common council, Charles Buchholtz has shown himself pre-eminently qualified to serve the voters of the Tenth Ward as their representative in the county legislature, and his nomination by the Republican party in that ward for the office of supervisor is a matter for congratulation. Mr. Buchholtz possesses all the qualities and qualifications which are needed to make him an ideal representative of the people in the board of supervisors. His record in city affairs justifies the prediction that his record in county affairs will be just as clean. His neighbors throughout the Tenth Ward are entirely familiar with his work in their behalf and are satisfied that he will perform the duties of supervisor with credit to them and to himself. No man possesses the confidence of neighbors and friends to a greater degree and his vote on election day should show it.



That Body of Yours

IS SHOCK SERIOUS?

You have struck your finger nail with a hammer, have cut yourself severely, have perhaps a severe attack of diarrhoea, or have witnessed some severe accident to someone else. The cold sweat stands out on your forehead, your temperature goes down, your face is pale and anxious, and you have a weak, all gone feeling.

Perhaps you feel like vomiting, and you sink exhausted to the floor.

Now this is not a fainting spell. This is "shock."

Shock is a serious thing, but is usually not hard to handle, if you have any one with you.

You see as I said before the blood has all left the surface and is busy inside.

Now the whole idea in treatment is to cause a "reaction." If a reaction does not come soon you may be in for a serious time. In fact as you know, death may ensue from simple shock. You have read very often about "shock" killing people where the injury was not even serious.

And so you must do all the things that will correct the symptoms.

First, heat is your big standby. Heat is life. The hot water bottle has been a wonderful help to people in many ways, but in no way is it more effective than right here. Use one, two, or even three hot water bottles about the spine and abdomen.

In the old days they heated the flat irons, covered with a piece of blanket.

Even hot bricks are very effective, when available.

Keep on the back, with the head if anything just a little lower than the rest of the body.

It is not usually wise to give anything by the stomach, until there is some slight sign of reaction. Heat is the big factor here also, so very hot coffee or beef tea may be used with good effect.

Don't be in a hurry to get on the feet again.

The system has received a severe blow as it were, and rest for a half hour, or even longer is wise.

Shock is one place where a stimulant is indicated, and there should be no hesitancy about giving it.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE ADDS TO QUESTIONNAIRE

William H. Anderson has sent to each candidate for the legislature at this fall's election a supplement to the Anti-Saloon League's former questionnaire asking each candidate if he will favor, if elected, an investigation of the whole wet and dry question and all the issues involved, including the Anti-Saloon League, the apparent malfeasance of the district attorney of New York county; The Rockefeller representative associate of that district attorney; the charge of connection between the Klan and League, authority to be conferred to compel attendance of witnesses and League counsel to be given an opportunity to cross examine.

PLANTS THAT HAVE "SIGHT"

Either That Sense or Instinct Which Would Seem to Answer the Same Purpose.

We know that plants are sensitive to light and darkness. Many of them move during the day to turn the faces of their flowers always to the sun. Others open only when the daylight is dying, and when the moths on whom they rely to carry their pollen are abroad.

Climbing plants, such as sweet peas, seem to fling their tendrils in an almost uncanny way in the direction of anything that will serve as a support.

A scientist engaged recently in taking photographs of leaves through the microscope was surprised to discover that some of them showed hundreds of little round patches, each of which reflected the image of some object, just as do the facets of the compound eye of an insect. Closer examination proved that each of these patches consisted of a cell whose rounded outer wall formed a perfect lens.

Each cell was, in fact, a perfect eye. It was tempting to jump to the conclusion that plants could see. Actually they do not. The "eyes" serve quite a different purpose. A plant lives by the process of bottling up sunshine, whose action produces chemical changes within the leaves and the stem. The leaves focus the sun's rays and enable the work to be done effectively.

Plants are sensitive to light simply because when the sun shines the chemical changes within them go on with increased speed. Climbing plants find supports by groping. The tendrils follow the sun, and as they move round they touch and hold on to anything suitable that lies in their path.

LONDON THIEF USES CANDLE

Burglar Always Carries Stump and Matches in Cigar Box and Leaves Them.

There is an old-fashioned burglar in London who has mystified New Scotland Yard detectives for a long time, the Cincinnati Enquirer says.

At every home he breaks into he leaves a cigar box. About two dozen cigar boxes have been collected by the police and deposited at various stations in the north and northwest suburbs.

The cigar box is used as a candlestick. He puts the stump of a candle and some matches in the box, and when, in the early hours of the morning, he forces the catch of a window and enters a house he lights the candle and quietly makes a search for jewelry.

Having filled his pockets with all the valuables he can find he leaves the cigar box with the candle and the matches on a chair or table and goes home.

Nobody has yet been able to find out anything more about this mysterious burglar. The police think (without prejudice) that he is an old man, who, after leading an honest life for some years, has returned to the evil habits of his youth. They base this theory on the supposition that if he were a young man he would despise such an antiquated thing as a candle and carry an electric torch, but, being old, he cannot bring himself in line with the ideas of the modern burglar.

Seasickness a Thing of the Past.

The day when a cross-Channel journey or a long voyage will become a real delight rather than (to many) a distressingly trying discomfort is at hand, comments the Westminster Gazette.

Engineering has accomplished this by the perfection of what is known as the gyroscope stabilizer, the first of which, in this country, has been constructed by the Metropolitan Vickers Electrical company at their Trafford Park works, Manchester. The manner in which the gyroscope steadies a ship is simple. If a wave comes along and seeks to push the ship over in one direction the gyroscope quietly pushes it back, exerting an equal force directly opposite to that of the wave.

Entitled to Peace.

"This is the arena of the Coloseum," announced the tourist, doing a little lecturing for the benefit of his wife. "From yon grim portals the lions entered. Yonder sat Alexander the Great to supervise the combats."

"Don't display your ignorance," retorted his better half. "Alexander the Great was never in Rome."

"He was."

"He was not."

The husband subsided.

"All right, my dear, I won't dispute you. This arena has seen enough battles."

Strange Experience.

One evening after I had finished helping mother dry dishes I decided to read my story book. I began where I had left off—about the middle of the book. Soon I fell asleep. I dreamed of a strange story, something like the one I was reading. I dreamed to the end of the story. The next day when I finished my book I found it was exactly as my dream had been and also ended the same way.—Chicago Journal.

Cement for China and Glassware.

A cement for mending broken china and glassware may be made as follows: Mix a cupful of milk with a cupful of vinegar, then separate the curd from the whey and mix the whey with the whites of five eggs, beating the whole thoroughly together. When it is well mixed sift in a little quicklime and stir until the mixture is of the consistency of thick paste. Cement made in this way dries quickly.

Blessings of Poverty.

There is no great loss without some small gain, and in cities and villages where they have no money to do anything with, and no way to get it, the streets are not eternally torn up putting in sewers and repairing pavements.—Liberty Press.

HAVE PEST OF CATERPILLARS

Myriads of the Insects Strip Trees in Bohemia—Peasants Carry Umbrellas in Woods.

Oscar John, a New York musician who returned recently from Czecho-Slovakia, said that the great forests of northern Bohemia were being destroyed by a caterpillar pest, according to the New York Times.

"The caterpillars in northern Bohemia," said Mr. John, "originate in myriads from the black butterfly called the nonne, or nun in English, which lays its eggs on the ground in the forests. Directly these insects are hatched they swarm up the trees, sapping its life as they climb up the trunk by eating all the green shoots and leaves.

"On reaching the top the caterpillars swing by their own saliva across to the next tree and destroy it as they go down to the ground. Millions of these crawling pests make a miss when they are doing the aerial trapeze act and fall to the ground so thickly that it is just like rain.

"Peasants walking through these dense forests have to carry great cotton umbrellas to prevent themselves from being smothered by the caterpillars. There are no picnics under the trees, because a soup basin would be filled up before there would be a chance to eat the contents.

"The only thing that can be done with the trees after the caterpillars have finished with them is to cut down the dead trunks and saw them up into logs for firewood.

"It gives one an uncanny feeling to walk through the great dark forests of northern Bohemia and hear the gloomy croak of the huzzgloak from the lofty branches of the trees and the pitter-patter of the caterpillar rain on the big umbrellas carried by the peasants."

MOTOR CAR CAMPERS MANY

They Are Doing Good Work Building Great Fraternity of Outdoor Sports Lovers.

We have heard the lure of the outdoors preached as long as we can remember, says the Sportsman's Digest, and while no one disputed the value of time spent close to nature, it remains a fact that only since the motor car has come into universal use have appreciable increases been made in the number of people who spend a part of their spare time in the open.

A few years ago the motor car camper was a rare specimen—a curiosity that would attract attention at any cross roads. Today he is a fixture to be found on every highway and byway of this broad land. Each season he is carrying more and more of his fellows out into the open, thus aiding, to a great extent, the purpose that the outdoor press has so long advocated.

The camper is to be encouraged, for through him a great fraternity of outdoor sports lovers is being built. The community which has not made provision for the camper and is not ready to welcome him is far behind the times, not only in the way of failure to co-operate in a growing movement, but from a selfish standpoint also. The camper, depending on the treatment he receives, can become a great asset to a community.

Yes, the camper is a fixture and it seems to be up to the various communities to receive him well and to send him on his way pleased with the courtesy shown him—an ardent booster for the communities which he has visited.

Wilder Than the Animals.

"With all our so-called wisdom and civilization, we have not learned much about dress," said one park bench philosopher to another, wiping the perspiration from his brow and from beneath a wilted collar.

"You're right," said the other, his roving eye catching a glimpse of a feminine apparition as it flitted by, "some of the styles in women's dress I've seen would make Mark Anthony weep."

"What I was about to say," the other continued, "was that a sweltering day like this is no time for a coat." He began to shed that part of his raiment. "Speaking of extremes, I just passed a woman wearing a heavy cape and furs about her neck. Even wild animals shed their fur in summer time."

"The trouble is," said the other, "some women are wilder than the animals."—Exchange.

Effects Not Pleasant.

An Evansville young woman, teaching her first term at school, was not only impressed with the nobleness of her profession but had determined that all her friends should so be impressed.

"Oh, it is wonderful work," she said when at a friend's home, "this teaching the young to shoot."

The friend pointed to her kitchen window, which had been broken earlier in the day by a shot from a slingshot.

"Yes," she agreed, "it is wonderful work, but you must make it still more wonderful by teaching them how to take poorer aim."—Indianapolis News.

Canada's Urban Population.

The population of Canada is about equally divided between city dwellers and country dwellers. The total urban population is given as 4,352,773 and the total rural population 4,455,410. In Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan the rural population runs about 75 per cent of the whole.

Primitive Cooking in Pygmy Land.

In the Sierra de Perija uplands of Colombia there is a race of pygmies the tallest man of which is only four feet high. But according to Mr. George P. Busch, who writes in the World's Work, their size is only one of many curious things about them. For example, Mr. Busch could discover no cooking utensils in the tribal kitchens; and, since monkeys seemed to be the chief article of food, he was naturally curious to learn how they cooked them. He waited, and this is what he saw: Two pygmies took the monkey, one by its arms, the other by its legs, and, standing on opposite sides of the fire, swung the body back and forth through the flame. At first the hair of the animal burned off; then the flesh gradually roasted. Perhaps at the end of an hour, when it was time to eat the meal, the hands and the brains, which are considered to be the choicest parts, were given to the two men who had patiently swung the monkey back and forth through the fire.

Llama Has Double Value.

The llama is employed as a beast of burden in parts of South America, chiefly in Peru, Chile, and Bolivia, and is also valuable as the producer of fiber commonly called wool, although it might be called a kind of camel hair. With respect to wool or hair, the most valuable of the llamas are those belonging to a species known as paco, or more generally alpaca. This kind of llama resembles a sheep but with a longer neck. It produces a fine long wool or hair, usually dark brown in color or black. From this material are made several kinds of very durable and handsome fabrics—women's dress goods as a rule.

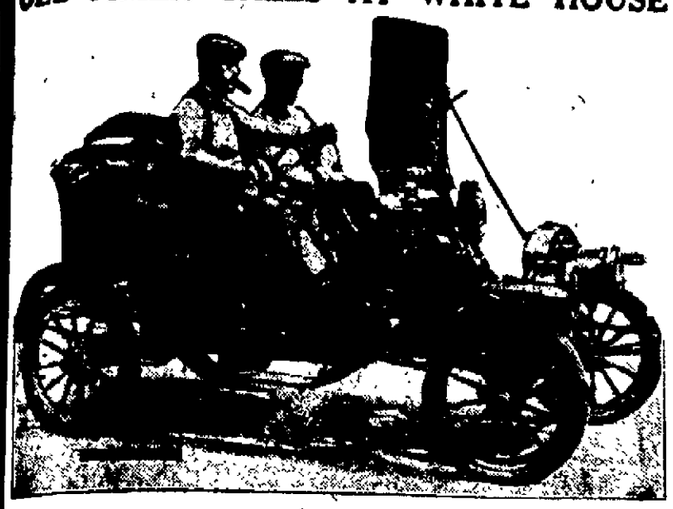
Castoreum.

Castoreum is a substance produced by a pair of glands in the anal region. It has a peculiar odor which is neither strong nor unpleasant, and is attractive to various animals, among them the beaver itself. Hence it is used as a bait by fur trappers, a little of it being placed in such a position that the beaver or other creature sought is caught in coming to it. It is used in the manufacture of perfumes, and was formerly recommended in medicine as a stimulant and antispasmodic, and has been prescribed for more than 2,000 years; and it still has a market value.

To Do Away With Boiler.

A Swedish scientist is said to have devised a steam accumulator by means of which it is possible to do away with the clumsy and wasteful boiler now in use. The invention is regarded as one of the most important ever made in connection with steam engines.

OLD-TIMER CALLS AT WHITE HOUSE



A car of 1903 arrived at the White House the other day, after making the trip from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the driver, A. Scherff, carrying a message from the mayor of Philadelphia to the President. Scherff has covered 16 states and hopes to make all the states before the first of the year, carrying messages from the different mayors and governors.

MOTOR TROUBLES DUE TO POOR OIL

"Medium" Lubricator Scorched Under Friction and Permitted Bearings to Go Dry.

By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

Let's take a typical case of the pace that kills. Your Eighty-Eight rolls out of the salesroom on it's first 2,000 miles. Of course you drive pretty slowly on the first five hundred or thousand miles, so as not to burn her up. You watch the oil gauge and when it slides down the scale you stop at an oil station. And here's where you get into trouble.

"Medium or light oil?" asks the oil man "Medium," you say because "medium" sounds like a good average. And then whatever brand of oil that particular station has is poured into your crankcase.

Then Came Musical Tap-Tap.

All right. Let's go! Soon "3,000" clicks into place on the speedometer, so you let her out to discover what the big eight can really do. A rough overtone sounds over the sweet purr of the motor, but you're hitting forty-five and are too busy to notice it. Then comes a hint of labor into the drone of the motor and then a musical tap-tap. And as you let the accelerator spring up from the floorboard the tap becomes a whack—and then—you have no one to blame but yourself. The $50 bill the garage man hands you is the cost of a lesson in "Don't Just Say Oil."

Here is what happened to the inside of the motor. It was a beautiful job to start with—joints cozy and bearings snug, to start with—but it was new metal, and surface ground against surface. Tiny filings washed off into the oil and sank to the crankcase. Some of the "medium" oil you purchased was poor stuff that scorched under friction and permitted the bearings to go dry. Your car was designed with broad bearing surfaces of narrow clearance, calling for light oil. Medium oil was the same as a fat man trying to squeeze through an elevated train—neither are built for the work. The bearings got hotter and wore away quickly, dropping still more filings down into the oil below.

Dust came in through the breather tubes and the air intake, carbon began to accumulate, and as the motor was never again given a good cleaning out, there formed in the reservoir a sandlike mixture of oil, metal and various kinds of grit. And when you let her out the motor sent in an emergency call for more oil and the pump obeying flushed the friction surfaces with a sickly mush until finally a wrist-pin began to shriek.

Use Best Oil and Greases.

If only every motorist would keep his car supplied with best oil and greases adapted to it, 90 per cent of motor troubles would disappear.

Peculiar, too, isn't it, when you come to think about it? Here you go and put half a year's income into a car and then neglect to give it the proper lubrication. Gosh, it's the embodiment of every principle known to mechanics, from high tension to hydraulics; it's the peak of standard perfection. With real care the normal life of a motor car is from fifty to a hundred thousand miles and it may be much longer than that. But at ten thousand miles it has reached the dangerous age and will begin to sow it's wild oats if it is not carefully watched. At twenty thousand it is rapidly sinking into senile debility. Man, you can't break the commandments and stay young, not without a lot of expensive repairs, anyhow.

So use the best oil there is—it's the cheapest in the long run.

CROSSING RAILROAD TRACKS

Speeding Up and Coasting Is Dangerous Even If Clear View Is Had From Road.

Crossing railroad tracks by speeding up and coasting is dangerous, even if a clear view of the track is had from the road. The crossing may be rougher than it looks, or there may be more of an upgrade than appears at first glance and the momentum of the car can be quickly dissipated.

LEGITIMATE USE OF CHAINS

Many Drivers Find Ways of Overdoing Things and Get in Habit of Driving Too Fast.

Chains have their legitimate use, but as usual drivers find ways of overcoming it. The latest is the habit of driving too fast. Even the chain manufacturers don't advertise that their articles will guarantee motorists against accidents, but drivers seem to have a notion that the chains justify greater speed. As a matter of fact, the chains simply make the normal speed of the car for wet weather safe. If 15 to 20 miles an hour is the limit for wet weather driving the chains will make this speed practically safe. But if the driver clips off 30 miles per hour or over he must remember that in event of need for a quick stop conditions are about the same as though he were caught going 20 miles per hour without chain protection Too much confidence in chains is like getting careless with the gasoline just because there's a fire extinguisher in the car.

DEVICE TO AVOID SKIDDING

Simple and Inexpensive to Manufacture and Prevents Detachment of Chains.

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing anti-skid device, the invention of C. F. A. Nuebling of Hewlett, L. I., N. Y., says:

An object of the invention is to provide a construction in which accidental detachment of the cross chains from the side chains will be prevented. Another object is to provide a connection between the side and cross chains by means of which said chains may be readily detached from each other. The device is simple and inexpensive to manufacture.

STEP ON STARTER IF CAUGHT

Few Motorists Realize What a Source of Emergency Power Electric Device Can Be.

Few motorists realize what a source of emergency power an electric starter-motor can be.

When caught on railroad tracks with a stalled motor the thing to do is to place the gears in "second" and step on the starter. The car will move off the tracks slowly but surely, and in half the time that would be required to crank the motor. Some starters make so much noise that a train couldn't be heard approaching while the motor is being cranked.

A practice of relying on the starter-motor, of course, is a good way to get acquainted with the repair shops, but it is assumed that stalling on railroad crossings is not a habit. Many abuses of the car are justifiable in an emergency; the point is to know what ones can be relied upon as life-savers.

MARIONETTE SHOW HERE NOV. 6

Something new in the line of dramatic art, a revival and a wonderful development of the old time puppet shows, whose beginning goes back to early Greece, is soon to be offered to the public. Tony Sarg, who has developed the puppet show into a finished art in his Marionettes, has been engaged by the Kingston High School Athletic Association to put on a performance of these famous little actors in the high school auditorium on Tuesday evening, November 6.

The modern Marionettes are about two feet high, perfectly proportioned and so skillfully jointed and weighted that they are capable of making virtually every movement of the human body. They have nearly as many joints as a human being. Their faces are modeled of wax and in the case of the Sarg castes, are contrived with supreme skill. These figures are entirely controlled by little wires fastened to their joints and then up to the top of the stage where they are worked by human beings, who do the talking and make all the sounds seeming emitting from the mouths of the Marionettes. These people who control the Marionettes are called the "puppeteeos" and they become wonderfully proficient in the management of their small charges.

Tony Sarg's Marionettes were lately appearing at the Punch and Judy Theater in New York city in a series of performances and they were received with much enthusiasm.

In the afternoon of Tuesday, November 6, the performance, "Hansel and Gretel" will be put on for the school children.

In these days, two hearts that beat as one would not be half so interesting as two mouths that eat as one.

It may be that in time these women folks will be as good smokers as men, but they'll never have quite as convenient a way of striking matches.

The two things most costly to maintain are a used car and national honor.

Auto-suggestion is all very well in its way, but it's darn hard to convince yourself that you were just scratching your head when you tipped your hat to the wrong lady.

Food.

A reader asks: "Can you recommend a good egg beater?"

The only thing we know that beats an egg is two eggs; or maybe ham and eggs or bacon and eggs. When you come right down to it, it's hard to beat an egg. If you let it rest two months until its a broiler, that might beat it. But for immediate use, say for breakfast this morning, you just can't beat it— that's all.

Very few boys are as good as their parents think, or as bad as their neighbors think.

The older a woman gets the more she admires common sense in a man and the older a man gets the less he likes common sense in a woman.

Harlequin Style.

Towards the close of the Eighteenth century furniture makers designed pieces which might have a double or triple use. This was called harlequin furniture. Beds of today that are transformed into mantels or pianos, tables which become dressers, chairs that are stepladders are surely examples of harlequin style.

...OLIVEREA.

Oliverea, Oct. 25.—Mrs. J. F. Butler of Kingston is spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dutcher, in this place.

Mrs. Samuel Nager, while visiting at Fleischmanns over Sunday, had the misfortune to fall down a flight of stairs and was quite badly bruised. She is improving, however, and hopes soon to return to her home here.

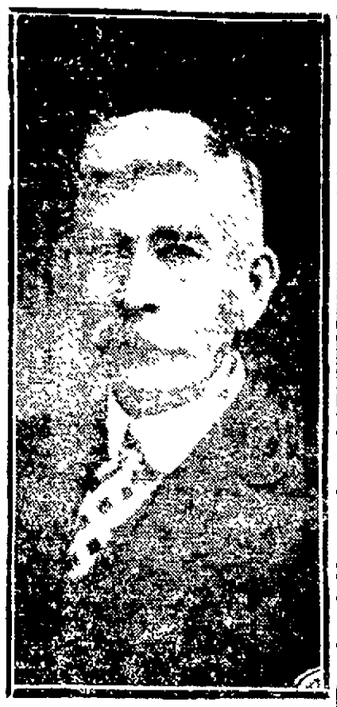
Miss Elsie Lane of Lanesville and Miss Ethel Rikert of Chichester were guests of Mrs. Edwin C. Chase in this village Tuesday evening.

A civil service examination has been called at Big Indian to fill the vacancy in the office of postmaster here. The examination will be held November 24. Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett has assumed the duties of the position as acting postmaster.

Miss Madeline Van Valkenburgh is spending two or three weeks in Brooklyn.

WELL QUALIFIED FOR COUNTY SUPT.

Experience Has Shown That Lester L. Sagendorf is Thoroughly Familiar With Duties of Office for Which He is Candidate.



LESTER L. SAGENDORF.

Practical business management and practical farming have placed the Ulster county farm and poor house foremost among such institutions in New York state, and proper and satisfactory care of the unfortunate poor at a minimum cost to the taxpayers have characterized the management for the past eighteen years.

In order that such management may be continued, the Republican party nominated Lester L. Sagendorf for the office of county superintendent of the poor because of his knowledge of the work which must be done there.

For five years, Mr. Sagendorf has served as a member of the supervisors' committee on accounts of superintendent of the poor, being chairman of that committee for three years. In this way Mr. Sagendorf has come in close contact with the business of caring for the county poor, and the knowledge thus gained will prove invaluable in the conduct of the office.

Mr. Sagendorf is both a practical farmer and a practical business man. He was born in the town of Shandaken in 1862 and is a son of W. A. Sagendorf and Clarissa Ellinge. With the exception of one year during which he was a clerk in the store of L. A. Chichester, he continued to reside there until 1884 when with his father he removed to Woodstock.

In 1888 Mr. Sagendorf began life independently, and has "made good." For a time he was employed by Biggs & Moore of Newburgh, one of the largest oil and paint houses along the Hudson river, and in that position he gained most valuable business experience.

In 1892 he returned to Woodstock and rented a small farm. Five years later bought the William Winne farm, which he remodelled and developed into one of the finest farms in Ulster county, in keeping with the general farm development of the county. He has served as supervisor of the town of Woodstock since January 1, 1916, and has been a member of important committees of the county legislature, including five years' service on the committee on superintendent of the poor accounts.

Throughout his life, Mr. Sagendorf has shown sound executive and administrative ability, in business, in farming and in public affairs. The proper care of the unfortunate poor of the county has appealed strongly to him, and at all times he has co-operated heartily with Superintendents Cornelius L. Van Orden and William S. Hartshorn in maintaining the high standards which have placed the county poor house and farm in the front rank of county charitable institutions of the state.

The city of Kingston does not vote for county superintendent of the poor because the city operates and maintains its own institution—the City Home. The county institution has become partly self-supporting, the balance of the expense of maintenance being paid by the county outside of the city and by the various towns which send their unfortunate poor there.

Forestalled Hostess.

The hostess of a children's dance was saying good-by to her guests. A dainty little girl of six, after mentally noting the lady's formula of leave-taking, and anxious to say the correct thing, ingeniously forestalled her hostess with: "Good-night, Mrs. ———, I hope I have enjoyed myself."

TWO SAILORS ENGAGE IN FIERCE FIGHT ON SHIP

Fireman's Arm Almost Severed and Lung Punctured by Watertender in Stokehole Battle.

New York.—The story of a fight, far down in the stokehole of the steamship Munamar, as she lurched along through a squall, was recounted when the vessel docked here, with one man at the point of death in the sick bay and another in irons in the ship's brig.

Knives and monkey wrenches were the weapons, and Alfonso Rido, a fireman, who was worsted in the encounter by Adolpho Mohojo, watertender, bore ghastly evidence of the fury of the fight.

His left arm was almost severed at the shoulder, one of his lungs was punctured, and his head was badly cut. Mohojo escaped with a few bruises.

The battle started, according to ship's officers, over some trifling argument. Both men seized monkey wrenches. They were separated before either had been seriously hurt.

Rido, sent forward to the ship's surgeon for treatment of a slight scalp wound, met Mohojo in a passageway. The latter had armed himself with a knife and fiercely resumed the fray.

Rido fled to the deck with Mohojo in hot pursuit, falling, finally, near the rail, literally slashed to pieces. Mohojo was overpowered and put in irons.

Baby Smothered to Death While Asleep With Poodle

Allentown, Pa.—Suffocated by a dog was the finding of Coroner Bausch, following an investigation of the death of John, two-months-old son of Mrs. Jennie de Blasce of this city. The child was found dead in bed by the mother. It was thought to be sleeping soundly in its crib when Mrs. De Blasce, aroused by the ringing of the doorbell went downstairs to admit her husband, who works nights in a local silk mill.

As she left the room the family pet, a French poodle, jumped from the child's crib, and it is believed that the dog slept with the baby and suffocated it.

Slayer Asks Judge to Send Him to Guillotine

Paris.—The case of a man asking for capital punishment and getting it, although the jury was at first inclined to mercy, is reported from Rodez, Aveyron.

Ivan Celestin, thirty-five years old, born at Jaleyrac, was accused of murdering Constantine Emile, whose wife, mother of two children, went mad from grief after the crime.

Evidence was not sufficient to convict and the jury so reported to the judge, who, however, held that there were sufficient facts to justify passing a life sentence.

At this juncture the accused rose in the dock and announced that he was guilty.

"I killed Emile because I loved his wife," he said. "I deserve to be killed and I want you to see that I die."

Prefers Death Room at Sing Sing to Jail Cell

New York.—William Creasy prefers life in the death house at Sing Sing to that in the Nassau county jail at Mineola and has asked Warden Lawes to permit him to remain there until the Nassau county authorities decide what they will do in his case.

Creasy was convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to die in the electric chair. Two weeks ago the Court of Appeals granted him a new trial. It is customary to take a prisoner from the death house within a few days after such a decision. Creasy told Warden Lawes he thought it was more cheerful in the death house than in the cells at Mineola.

Thief Calls Newark, Del., Sleepiest Town in World

Newark, Del.—"This is the sleepiest town I ever saw. I could rob all the places here and no one would ever know it."

With this compliment on Newark, Kenneth Frazer of Wilmington stopped Constable L. S. Ellison and asked to be locked up and sent to the workhouse.

"I robbed McCormick's poolroom last night," Frazer said. Ellison admitted this was news to him. As the poolroom is across from the magistrate's court, he investigated and found the place had been robbed. Frazer will spend the next three years in the workhouse.

Dog Gives Life to Save Woman From Deadly Snake

Lisbon, O.—Bobby, a shepherd dog, gave his life to save his mistress, Mrs. O. W. Burlingame, when he leaped and seized a copperhead snake in midair, after the snake had struck at Mrs. Burlingame.

Bobby killed the snake, but not before it had sunk its fangs into his head.

Burglar Flees From Home When Light Bulb Explodes

Flint, Mich.—A burglar who ransacked the home of M. F. Downer here, recently, was so frightened by the explosion of an incandescent light bulb, which he dropped while preparing to leave the house, that he abandoned his plunder, valued at several hundred dollars, and fled. Near the door lay a sack filled with jewelry, furnishings and clothing.

CEDAR RUST QUARANTINE BOUNDS FIXED

Under Chapter 851, Laws of 1923, Section 171-a of the Farms and Markets Law, the chapter being relative to control of "orange" or "cedar rust," George A. Atwood, director, bureau of plant industry of the State department of Farms and Markets, has forwarded to County Clerk John H. Saxe a certified copy of the boundaries of a "fruiting apple district" to be under the quarantine order made by Berne A. Pyrke, the commissioner of Farms and Markets.

The district or area to which this quarantine applies comprises parts of the towns of Marlborough, Ulster county, and of Newburgh, Orange county, the line being between the town of Marlborough and Lloyd from the Hudson river westerly to the point where said boundary line crosses the state highway leading most directly from Highland to Clintondale. On the west by the most direct highway leading southerly from this point to Lattintown, and from Lattintown southerly by the Lattintown road to its intersection with the Plattekill road; thence westerly along the line of Plattekill road to its intersection with the road leading south, known as the Prospect Hill road, thence southerly, following the line of Prospect Hill road to its intersection with the road leading east in the town of Newburgh, known as the Leslie road, thence easterly following the line of the Leslie road to the New York and Albany state highway and continuing in the same direction easterly to the Hudson river; bounded on the east by the Hudson river and also including all lands abutting on the west side of the roads comprising the westerly boundary, back 1,000 feet west of said highway.

The above prohibition and quarantine shall take effect on and after the 30th day of October, 1923.

The law states that the state department of farms and markets shall have the authority to establish quarantine districts in any part or parts of the state. In such districts it may prohibit the possession of any red cedar tree or trees, or the planting, growing, propagating, cultivating, selling or keeping alive any red cedar tree or trees. It may also prohibit the transportation of any cedar trees from or to any quarantine district within the state, or from any area or locality outside the state to any point within the state. Such prohibition shall be effective on and after the tenth day from the date of the order made with respect thereto. On the making of such an order the state commissioner of farms and markets shall cause a certified copy of the same to be filed in the office of the clerk of each county affected by such quarantine, and shall give such other notice thereof as he may deem necessary.

UPTOWN HEBREW SCHOOL MASQUERADE HUGE SUCCESS

Under the auspices of the Sisterhood of the Uptown Hebrew School, a masquerade and dance was held at Clermont Hall, Wall and John streets, on Wednesday evening, October 24. About 250 joyous folks participated in the affair, which proved a pronounced success. Four prizes were awarded the four best masqued couples as follows. First prize, Mr and Mrs. Henry Klein; second prize, Mrs. Kreisig and Mrs. Carson; third prize, Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Hucher; fourth prize, the Misses L. Henniger and P. Hornbeck. Music was furnished by the Imperial orchestra and delicious refreshments were served throughout the evening.

The next meeting of the sisterhood will be held at 268 Fair street on Sunday evening, October 28th, at 8 o'clock. Election of officers will be held.

MEETING TO AGREE ON BASKETBALL RULES

The annual meeting for the interpretation of the basketball rules, held under the auspices of the joint rules committee composed of representatives from the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the Young Men's Christian Association, and the Amateur Athletic Union, will take place at the Hotel Astor, Friday evening, November 2, at eight o'clock.

PREVENTION IS BETTER THAN CURE

This is the keynote on which the Ulster County Home Bureau is conducting its nutrition course this year. The course as conducted last year dealt with the body's needs and where to find them. This year they are taking up the prevention of common ailments. Miss Flora Thurston, nutrition specialist from Cornell University will conduct the second training school for local leaders at Accord Saturday, October 27th. The communities of Accord, Alligerville, Kerhonkson and Wawarsing are cooperating in this nutrition course in the Rondout valley.

PINE HILL.

Pine Hill, Oct. 25.—Local hunters report the greatest number of birds in this section this season that has been known for years.

Steve O'Connor has closed his cottage on Maple avenue and his family have moved to Brooklyn for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Robbins and Miss Boila, of New York city, spent the week-end in town, guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Redmond.

Harry France had the misfortune to have his Atlas truck badly damaged by fire last Friday. The loss, however, is covered by insurance.

J. S. Pessenar, formerly of the West Shore Hotel, Kingston, and High Point Lodge, Brodhead, N. Y., who has rented the Pine Hill Hotel for the winter, has made several improvements to the hotel and is already entertaining quite a number of transient guests. For several years this hotel has been closed from October until May, and parties visiting or driving through Pine Hill, after the boarding season closed, were obliged to seek accommodations from private families. The hotel is equipped with all modern improvements including steam heat and electric light. Mr. Pessenar's reputation as a high class hotel proprietor is well known, and parties visiting the hotel may be assured of first class service.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Billings will close their home in this village next week and leave town for Florida, where they will spend the winter.

Lieutenant Henry Ebert, of the New York city police force, accompanied by his wife, were guests at Pessenar's Pine Hill Hotel over Sunday. A. Tozzi and wife of Bayonne, N. J., have also been guests of the hotel for the past week. On Tuesday morning Mr. Pessenar and Mr. Tozzi left town for the Adirondacks, where they will spend a few days with a hunting party.

A. D. Hill is erecting a neat office building on his lot in front of his bowling alley on Main street. Isaac Whispell and James Reel have already completed a concrete foundation and the carpenter work will be commenced at once. We understand the outside of the building will be stucco.

The heavy rain in this section on Tuesday night and Wednesday was very much needed, as the streams and springs were unusually low.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo DuBois of Elmira, have been spending a few days in town with Mr. DuBois's parents.

John Brannon has rented Miss Muray's farm on the Birch Creek Road and took possession last week.

Miss Mae Pessenar, Mrs. Tozzi and Mrs. Reside motored to Margaretville on Tuesday.

Cod Liver Oil Now In Tasteless Tablets

GREATEST FLESH BUILDER

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy tasting, horrible smelling cod liver oil is brought out. Medical science progresses rapidly and now you can get at your druggists real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure. Even the run-down and skinny grown ups who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamin food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of magnesia.

Thin run-down, anemic men women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets.

One woman gained 15 pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor—another 10 pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child, age 9, gained 9 pounds in seven months and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—your druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only 60 cents a box.—Advertisement.

FARMERS READ WITH PURPOSE

Replies to a Thousand Letters Show Rural People Take Advantage of Helps Offered in Print.

Replies to letters sent to more than a thousand leading farmers, county agents and other practical farm workers disclosed the fact as reported in one of the farm journals, "that representative farmers are careful, discriminating readers; that they read with a definite purpose in mind; and that, therefore, they have a clear idea of what books are good and what are not good—for their particular purposes."

The farm paper which expressed these conclusions, collected from these representative farmers their ideas of what books, if any, were most helpful to them in their business. Some replied that they felt they could keep up with their business better through the bulletins and advice from their state colleges and the federal department of agriculture at Washington, supplementing this information with that contained in farm papers.

Most of those who replied to the letters however, gave the names of the book or books which had helped them most, and a list of the 26 most popular books was given in the farm paper which carried on the investigation.

Although the suggestions came from all over the country, only one book in the final list was not applicable equally well to any section; and only in two subjects was there duplication of the same subject matter in different books.

One interesting part of the story to New York farmers, says the state college at Ithaca, is that in this list of 26 favorite books appear all but two of those used in the correspondence courses in agriculture given as a part of the free extension service of the college to residents of New York state.

BATTERY E. SCHOOL FOR NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS

Battery E, 132nd Ammunition Train, has recently formed a school to train the men of the battery to be prepared, if the occasion arises, to qualify to become non-commissioned officers. This school is open to every member of the battery who cares to take advantage of this opportunity. This special school conforms with the requirements of the war department. So far there are about fifteen men taking advantage of this great opportunity. The school is held Monday nights after the regular weekly drill of the battery.

Word has been received by the battery from their commanding officer, Lieutenant E. L. Cashin, who is attending a regular army field artillery school at Fort Sills, Oklahoma, stating that he is enjoying the best of health and wishes to be remembered to his friends in the city. The war department selects fourteen National Guard officers to attend this school each year and Battery E can consider themselves fortunate in having one of their officers appointed to the school. Lieutenant Cashin has a very good record in his favor being a lieutenant in Old Co. M, serving overseas with the 104th Machine Gun Battalion, also with the 27th Division.

During the absence of of Lieutenant Cashin the battery is in command of Lieutenant H. A. Keator who also was an old Co. M boy and served overseas as a lieutenant with the 328th Infantry, 32nd Division, and also with the 26th Infantry, 1st Division in France.

The officers and non-commissioned officers of the battery are very efficient and offer every opportunity for a young man to join.

SAVE FLOWERS OVER WINTER

State College Advises Methods to Care for Tender and Hardy Bulbs and Perennial Plants.

On a dry day after the first killing frost in the fall, flowering plants with bulbs, tubers, or corms, such as the dahlia and the gladiolus, should be lifted, according to a bulletin recently issued by the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca.

This bulletin recommends that the stems should be cut leaving about three or four inches attached to the tubers or bulbs, which should be left on the ground to dry for a few hours and should then be stored in a cool dry cellar in which the temperature will not drop below 40 degrees during the winter months. If the cellar is likely to be too dry or warm, the bulbs should be stored in sand or fine ashes.

The decaying stems and leaves of flower garden plants should be removed and burned before the plants which stay outdoors are mulched for winter protection. The reason for this removal and burning is because the stems and foliage may harbor over winter the dormant spores of plant diseases or the eggs of insect enemies.

Strawy manure, cheap hay, or leaves of trees furnish the best protection for the flower garden, and this material should be placed over the borders or beds to the depth of from two to three inches. Care should be exercised, however, in placing the covering over such plants as foxgloves or sweet Williams because their foliage is retained throughout the winter and if too heavy or matted dressing is applied over them it has a tendency to cause the leaves and crowns of the plants to decay.

McSHERRY IN FAVOR OF SUNDAY BASEBALL

Kingston, N. Y., October 25, 1923.

Editor, Kingston Freeman:

My opponent, William Joy of the Sixth ward, I understand has been circulating a rumor about the Sixth ward to the effect that I am opposed to Sunday baseball. I desire to state to the voters of the Sixth ward that I am in favor of Sunday baseball, as it is a good clean sport.

Trusting that you may find space for this letter in your paper, I am,

Weather Bureau Forecasts Help

Of Great Importance to Fruit-Spraying Service of State College.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In addition to the harvest weather forecast service in New York state, the weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture provides forecasts which are of great importance to the fruit-spraying service maintained by the New York State College of Agriculture. The purpose of this service is to advise fruit growers in all matters pertaining to the spraying of fruit for the control of insect and other pests.

County Agent Is Head.

The county agricultural agent is at the head of this service in each county. He bears the responsibility of notifying the growers in his county, by telephone, mail or other means, whenever a spray application is advisable. Most growers are prepared to spray immediately on receipt of his advice, and do so in accordance with his directions. New York fruit growers spend approximately $3,000,000 annually in spraying operations.

In general three to five spray applications are made each season. It is of the utmost importance that each be applied at exactly the right time, neither too early nor too late, to avoid loss of labor and material and to catch the pests under exactly right conditions. In the case of apple scab, for example, a widespread and injurious fungus pest, the scab remains practically dormant during fair weather, but becomes actively infectious during rainy spells. The ideal condition for control of this pest, therefore, is two or three days of fair weather to apply the spray, followed by a rainy period.

Forecasts Essential.

Weather forecasts are essential in connection with the control of this pest by spraying, and for practically all fruit pests. The county agent, in preparing his advices to growers, takes account of the probable weather condition for three or four days in advance and the condition of buds and fruit as reported by the field agent who travels about the county observing the development of the fruit buds and also of the various pests. Twelve counties have organized for this work, and all of them regard the weather bureau forecasts as indispensable.

Increase in Wheat Yield Made by Oregon Farmers

An increase in yield of more than 48,000 bushels of wheat without extra labor was the reward of farmers in Union county, Oregon, following the advice of the county extension agent last winter in selecting the variety of winter wheat to be planted. The county agent had carried on an effective campaign calling the attention of wheat growers in the county to the higher yielding qualities of the variety Hybrid 128 under local conditions, as shown by the state experiment station tests. As a result, a number of farmers planted Hybrid 128 and obtained an average increase of 6.1 bushels per acre over all other varieties, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. About 92 acres of the 1922 planting was certified for seed.

Weapons to Be Employed Against Flies on Farm

If it is impossible to get rid of the breeding places of flies on the farm the best protection to the animals will be found in the use of repellants or mixtures which when applied to the animals will prevent the flies from attacking them, according to George Dean, Kansas state entomologist.

He suggests the possibility of destroying the breeding places of the horn fly, which is found in clusters on the shoulders, back and flanks of cattle in pasture, by scattering the animal droppings. Old rotting straw piles are the breeding places of the stable or biting fly, and Professor Dean suggests the advisability, if possible, of cleaning up or doing away with them.

Grit Is Most Essential to Health of Hen Flock

Grit is essential to the health of fowls and to economy in feeding. Grit take the place of teeth in preparing the feed for further digestion and is required for the proper preparation of feed in the gizzard. When the feed is not properly taken care of in this organ an undue strain is thrown on the fowl's system, often resulting in disease, and also allowing much of the nutriment to pass through the bird's body without being absorbed. In every pen or yard a box of grit should be kept. Recent investigators have asserted that grit is part of the necessary feed, giving the fowls strong bones and a bright plumage.

Diseases of Raspberry Plants Hard to Detect

While most of the diseases which attack raspberry plants cannot be detected on the plants themselves, after they have been dug, care should be taken not to use plants which show hard knots or galls on the roots. These are likely to spread from plant to plant and the raspberry fields infected with this disease are seldom profitable.

GEORGE M. WEAVER,

LURE OF MOUNTAIN

Thousands Face Danger to Climb Difficult Places.

Many Persons Attracted to This Form of Sport, Owing to Its Health Giving.

What is the lure which every year draws throngs of people to face discomfort or danger that they may climb a few hundred or thousand feet above the level of the sea? asks Francis Arnold Collins. The thrill of facing danger, after all, attracts but few; many are repelled by it. The explanation, doubtless, lies deeper. Mountain climbing assures the delights of difficulties overcome. It means exercise in the open and an ascent to freer and more exhilarating air and wider scene. Beyond all sports, again, it is healthgiving. The most democratic of contests, it requires only an equipment of stout shoes and sufficient determination. It may be taken in doses varied from day to day to suit the climber's taste and ambition. One man is satisfied to ramble among the foothills, another aspires to conquer Mont Blanc, and both may be satisfied without violating the rules of the game.

The attitude of the world in general toward mountain climbing has undergone several curious changes. The ancients looked upon the mountains with indifference. The great peaks failed either to tempt the adventurer or inspire the writer. Throughout the Middle ages the mountains inspired all classes with downright terror, so that no one ventured to climb even the familiar lower peaks. Only in the last century have men lost their terror of the mountains and found the courage and daring to scale them.

The early mountain climbers risked their lives in a spirit of adventure, as a rule. The ambition to be the first, or among the first, to scale the peaks which had always been considered inaccessible has caused thousands of climbers to face appalling risks. The price paid in loss of life in conquering the highest mountains of the world is amazingly high. The spirit of exploration and scientific investigation, again, has served to carry men farther, perhaps, than the mere daredevil spirit of adventure, notably in the cases of De Saussure and Professor Tyndall.

Within the last few years, however, the attitude of the public mind toward the mountains has once more undergone an interesting transformation. Today, mountain climbing is not generally regarded as a daring and dangerous adventure or an opportunity for exploration. For millions of people, the world over, it is merely one of the hardier forms of outdoor sport. Its appeal has thus been indefinitely extended. The inspiration and healthfulness of mountain climbing are brought within reach of all.

The lessons learned from countless accidents in mountain climbing have robbed this fascinating pastime of most of its dangers. Today, when accidents befall, they are almost always due to ignorance, lack of experience, or downright carelessness. All forms of mountain climbing have been reduced to an exact science.—St. Nicholas Magazine.

Days of Wildcat Banking.

The term "wild cats," today applied to worthless securities of any description, was originally the name given to certain banks in Michigan. Back in 1837 there was a severe financial panic. Many banks failed.

The currency which they had circulated became worthless, many bogus banks started up and issued "bank notes," and the country was overrun with a swarm of counterfeiters. Banking and business were demoralized and, to make matters worse, lax legislation was passed in many states, permitting almost any kind of financial robbery in the name of banking.

Such was the case in Michigan, where forty banks were started under a law of fraudulent character. These banks were called "wild cats" because the bank notes issued by them bore a picture of that animal. All but four of these failed within two years, hence the term "wild cat" to denote a very insecure financial obligation.—Detroit News.

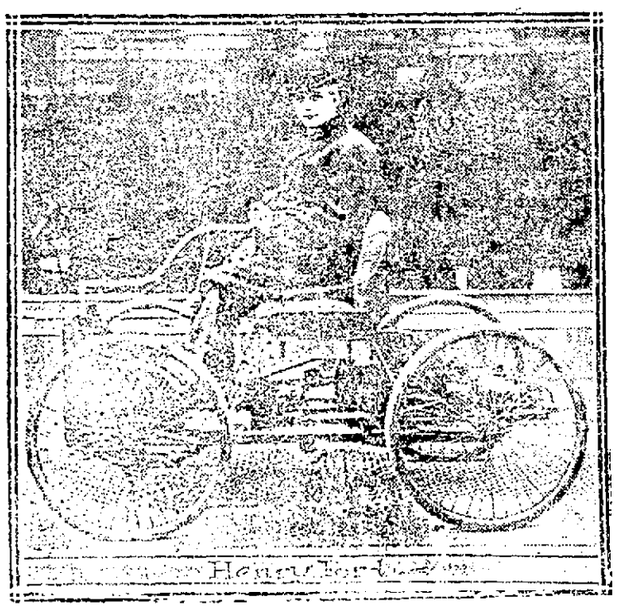
Viola Mitchell

Viola Mitchell is Pittsburgh's 12-year-old child prodigy, whose parents are forcing her to live a normal girl's life when she might be rich and famous. On a recent trip to New York with her teacher, Miss Margaret Horne, she played her rare Guarnerius violin before Prof. O. Sevick, teacher of Kubelik and other prominent violinists. "She is marvelous! At 20 she will be another Maud Powell!" he exclaimed. Immediately Viola was besieged with vaudeville offers. But her father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. Atlee Mitchell, refused them all and took their daughter back to their Pittsburgh home, where she is kept away from music for all but a short time each day and told to go out and play with other girls. "Better a normal, happy daughter than a thousand pale-faced 'child wonders,'" is Dr. Mitchell's motto.



This is a copy of a recently discovered photograph of Henry Ford out for a ride in the first Ford car, which was made in Detroit as the forerunner of the millions now in daily use.

MANIA FOR SPEED

French Drive Autos at Reckless Rate Down Mountains.

Writer Says Passengers Touring the Alps Sit Helpless and Trust to Luck and Skill

"The motor coach accidents which have occurred recently in the south of France do not surprise me in the least," writes a correspondent. "Having just returned from motoring over a number of mountain passes, I have had enough thrills to last me for a while.

"It was risky enough dodging the taxicabs in Paris, where apparently the speed limit is unknown, but on the steep gradients and zig-zags of the French Alps the danger becomes much more acute.

The pedestrian in Paris can, with some agility, escape with a whole skin, but a passenger in one of the motor coaches which make a feature of climbing several Alpine passes in the day can only sit helpless and trust to luck. The surprising thing is that accidents are not more frequent.

"French motor drivers have a passion for speed, and when two cars meet on a hairpin bend, with a very narrow road surface and a precipitous drop of some hundreds of feet on the one side, the situation is rather unpleasant for the car on the outside edge, and decidedly thrilling for the passengers. When taking such a curve at speed, as is often the case, it is simply a matter of nerve and steady steering that pulls one through, as a sudden application of the brakes might send the car skidding into space.

"French drivers take risks that would appall an English motorist. They rush down steep mountain roads, following each other in a dense cloud of dust, or dash out of brilliant sunshine into dark tunnels at a pace that makes one gasp.

"It all seems so reckless, and yet it is really perhaps the most expert driving in Europe. One's feelings of thankfulness at being landed whole at one's hotel door are mixed with a profound admiration of French skill in meeting road emergencies, but also with a distinct preference for the slower but safer driving to which we are accustomed at home."

Suburban Life Not All Roses.

Most young married couples sooner or later get the desire for "a little place in the suburbs with a bit of ground around it." Sometimes their wishes are realized, sometimes they go to the end of their days with their dreams unfulfilled. Those who attain their goal generally find that suburban life is not all as they had pictured it. It is usually friend husband who has his eyes opened more than friend wife.

Friend husband lives and learns a great many things. Even if he has a little more money than the average he finds it's up to him to know how to do a lot of plumbing jobs, carpentry jobs and to learn something of electricity, for help in the suburbs along these lines is not always available.

Friend husband grumbles, especially to friend wife. But he learns and he does what's expected of him. He has his reward in turning patronizingly to his fellow worker who has not yet fallen for the country and saying, "You ought to live out of town, old man. Nothing like it in the world."—New York Sun and Globe.

Mails Were Accommodating.

An Irishman was astonished to receive the following letter from his son in London:

"Dear Father—I am in a deuce of a hole. Kindly send me £10, and oblige—Your loving son, Pat.

"P. S.—After writing this letter I was so stricken with remorse that I ran after the postman and tried to get it back. I can only pray that it will not reach you."

But who could be more astonished than the son when he received this reply:

"Dear Son: Your prayers are answered. The letter did not reach me. Father."—London Tit-Bits.

He Won.

The recently announced engagement of a widely known man about town to a young woman who lives in Watts brings to light, if his closest friend can be believed, a new angle in successful courtship. Said friend gives the inside dope on the proposal as follows:

"If you would marry me, it would make me quite happy."

"My dear Bob, happiness is gained in the pursuit of something, not in the catching it."

"That's not so!" cried Bob. "You've never chased the last car out of this town on a rainy night!"—Los Angeles Times.

Still Musical.

Two men who had been old school fellows met in a restaurant. After exchanging greetings, one said:

"By the way, old chap, when at school you used to be rather fond of music. Do you play any instrument now?"

"Yes," was the reply; "second fiddle at home."

His Idea of Substitutes.

"So the Lord has sent you a little sister instead of the brother you asked for?" said the kindly neighbor.

"Yes."

"I suppose you are just as pleased?"

"Just as pleased? I should say not. I suppose this Christmas if I ask for a jack knife they'll give me a doll buggy."

Slump in Trade.

Disgusted Vendor—"Slump in trade? Of course there's a slump in trade! What else do you expect when you offers the public what it wants, and the blinkin' public don't realize it?"—London Humorist.

BRONZE TABLET TO 'OLD PUT'

Shaft Is Unveiled for Revolutionary War Hero at the House Where He Was Born.

Who cannot feel a thrill of mingled patriotism and romance at thought of the recent commemoration at the ancient town of Danvers, Mass.? For there was unveiled a bronze tablet, voluminously inscribed, upon the house in which Israel Putnam was born; a sort of nunc pro tunc performance, since the tablet declares itself to be in memory of the two hundredth anniversary of his birth, while, in fact, he was born more than 205 years ago.

There is scarcely another figure in American history that so strongly appeals to sentiments of daring and devotion as that of "Old Put," the hero of Bunker Hill. We should doubt if there was another identified with quite so many dramatic incidents. Every schoolboy, in Macauley's phrase, is familiar with the stories of his crawling into a she-wolf's lair and strangling the animal with his hands; of his being partly burned at the stake by Indians; of his leaving the plow in the furrow and riding 100 miles in a single day to join the patriots at Concord; of his planning the battle of Bunker Hill and giving the command, "Don't fire till you see the whites of their eyes"; of his message to Clinton: "Edmund Palmer was taken as a spy, has been tried as a spy, condemned as a spy and shall be executed as a spy.—P. S.—He has accordingly been executed," and of his escape from capture by riding down the Horseneck steps where his British pursuers dared not follow.

A descendant of George Puttenham, the reputed author of "The Arte of English Poesie"; a veteran of Crown Point and Montreal; hero of the capture of Havana, of the overthrow of Pontiac and of the Revolution, and a soldier who, in the days of Conway, Gates and Charles Lee seemed ignorant of the very existence of politics and of the possibility of intrigue, the ancestor of men greatly and worthily honored in our own times—"Old Put" is abundantly entitled to every token of affection and esteem that grateful memory can bestow.—New York Tribune.

Army Ants Clean House.

The Indians of Guiana respect the "army" ants because of their housecleaning propensities. Every house, from the rude thatched benab of the Indian to the solid wooden ones of civilization, are more or less infested with very large roaches and other insects, and also huge tarantulas, which come only to obtain the roaches. The "army" ants come not infrequently in tremendous armies and in the course of a few hours leave the homes cleaner than they have ever been before.

In these great tribes there is but a single queen. Her sole duty, after the colony is once started, is egg-laying. Periodically a brood of young queens and males are hatched. These little ants are winged and as soon as they are mature all of them leave the tribe in what is called the marriage flight. Each queen finds a mate. They pair and the males soon die, but each young queen founds her own new tribe and, after bringing up the first workers, herself, this little crowd sets about to rear about themselves another great band of "army" ants.—Detroit News.

"Indelible Allegiance."

The doctrine, known as "indelible allegiance," was formally abandoned by act of parliament in 1870. Previously the English law held that every person born within the British dominions, though he should be removed to another country in his infancy, owed allegiance to the British crown, and that this allegiance could never be resigned or lost except by permission of parliament.

The enforcement of the "indelible allegiance" doctrine of expatriation was one of the chief causes of the War of 1812.

The same doctrine was originally in force in the United States. It was not until 1868 that the question was legally settled. Congress then passed a law asserting that expatriation or voluntary renunciation of allegiance to the United States by one of its citizens "is a natural and inherent right of all people."—Detroit News.

What Did He Mean?

In his announcements one Sunday morning the vicar regretted that money was not coming in fast enough—but he was no pessimist.

"We have tried," he said, "to raise the necessary money in the usual manner. We have tried honestly. Now we are going to see what a bazaar can do."

Times Change.

Colonel Bludgood—So you got a birthday present of a $5 knife, suh? One of those Birmingham knives, with 16 blades, and a corkscrew, I presume, suh?

Colonel Blugrass—No, suh; a plain, old-fashioned knife, with 16 corkscrews and one blade, suh.—Judge.

Unseasonable.

A little boy rushed up to his mother one sweltering summer day and cried out:

"I believe there's a fire, mother! May I go out and see?"

"Don't be so stupid," replied his mother. "As if there'd be a fire on a day like this!"—London Humorist.

Quite Reasonable.

Mr. Pester—Want more money? What did you do with the $50 I gave you yesterday?

His Wife—I spent it for a darling little gold mesh purse which will be utterly useless unless you give me some money to carry in it.

COTTEKILL.

Cottekill, Oct. 25.—The second annual oyster supper of Cottekill Council, Jr. O. U. A. Mechanics, will be held on November 1st, in the new building recently erected near the M. E. Church across from the railroad station, instead of in the council's rooms, as was stated in the last issue of this paper. Supper will be served from 5:30 p. m. until all are served. For those who do not care for oysters, there will be plenty of other things to satisfy. There will be dancing during the evening for those who desire. Proceeds for the benefit of the council.

Mrs. Harry Snyder and son, who have been spending some time at Pocantico Hills, returned to their home here on Sunday last.

Arthur Aldridge, school tax collector, has received the tax list and will collect said taxes at his residence in Binnewater at 1 per cent for thirty days from October 20th.

Snyder & Schaefer's new flour and feed warehouse is nearly completed at this writing.

The chicken supper recently held at the Reformed Church was a big success. Net proceeds were $212.

PUBLIC HEALTH WORK PROGRESS

Described by Dr. Laidlaw—Doctors Find They Can Prevent If They Can't Cure—Schick Test Proves Beneficial Here.

Dr. H. A. Laidlaw, district health commissioner, addressed the Kiwanis Club Thursday, telling of the progress made in recent years in public health work, particularly as regards communicable diseases and dispelling some of the misunderstandings that commonly exist as to a health official's duties.

Dr. Laidlaw has been the recipient of much praise for his recent work here in connection with the incipient outbreak of smallpox—praise that he was not entitled to, he said, since it was the cooperation of the board of health, the school officials and the citizens generally that made it possible to confine the disease to two or three persons. This occurrence well illustrated the difference in treatment of such outbreaks now and twenty years ago. Then there would have been merely a "shotgun quarantine" of all persons having the disease or suspected of it; now, while there is a rigid quarantine, the main effort is centered on locating the source or carrier. In Kingston's recent smallpox cases, the origin of the disease was, luckily, quickly discovered and then there was painstaking work to run down all who had been exposed and take preventive measures with them. The school vaccinations had been made easy by the hearty cooperation of the officials, the superintendent of schools being one of the first to be vaccinated.

Typhoid requires treatment by public health officers in much the same manner as smallpox, the modern practice being to confine the activities of those afflicted, at the same time using all efforts to discover the milk, water or other food supply, or the human carrier that is spreading the disease.

Prevention is the slogan of the modern health officer, rather than cure. Physicians are compelled to admit that with all the research and experience since the time of Aesculapius the disease for which we have a specific cure are so few they may be counted on the fingers of one hand, but in the preventive field amazing progress has been made. Death rates have everywhere been cut, especially infant mortality.

Diphtheria is one of the diseases for which there is a cure if treatment is begun early enough and, as a preventive measure the Schick toxin-anti-toxin has become established as standard practice, and has reduced the diphtheria death rate amazingly. In New York city injection of the serum in those children who have previously been proven to be susceptible to the disease, has protected them from diphtheria for eight years. The test has been given to about 1,000 school children in Kingston over a period of two years and already its beneficial results are apparent. It has become apparent, from the preliminary Schick test, that about ninety per cent of the younger children are susceptible to diphtheria and the protective serum is now administered to all these younger ones.

Kingston might well be proud of its record as to communicable diseases.

Dr. A. A. Stern and Dr. A. C. Cotes both spoke briefly along the line taken by Dr. Laidlaw, explaining or explaining some of the references to Kingston.

In the near future the club will enjoy a venison dinner, one of its skilled hunters having "brought home the bacon."

STONE RIDGE.

Stone Ridge, Oct. 25.—Eleanor L. Hodgkiss spent her two months vacation with her aunt, Mrs. Abernethy at Valley View Villa.

Aubrey V. Kingman and Miss Schindler spent Columbus Day and week end with his aunt at Valley View. Miss Emma Schlindler will remain here until after election day for her health.

Hazel and Eleanor Hodgkiss spent this week end with their aunt enjoying the fine weather and returning home on Monday, October 22nd.

Fergus J. Abernethy spent his entire two weeks vacation with his brother John.

Visitors here recently were: Mrs. Arthur Lounsbury and daughter, Armorel of Springfield, L. I., Mr. and Mrs. Hodgkiss with their son Ensign G. Kingman Hodgkiss, who is an officer on the new super dreadnaught, U. S. S. Colorado, now stationed in the Brooklyn Navy Yard also Eugene Kingman and family of Brooklyn, N.Y.

CULTURE SPREAD BY WARS

French Soldiers Brought Artistic Treasures and Ideas From Their Campaigns in Italy.

"At the recent silk show in New York, which was seen by 200,000 people, the silk manufacturers of America laid their products before the American public," said Horace B. Cheney, the noted designer, "just as many years ago artists brought their finest work to kings.

"At the order of Francis I, greatest of the Valois, Benvenuto Cellini was summoned to the court of Paris, there to produce the miracles of his art which were astonishing Italy. Writes Cellini, 'We found the king's court at Fountainbleau. I went to his majesty with a basin and jug which I had made, and when I had come into his presence I kissed his knee, and he gave me the most gracious reception.'

"The name of Francis I is associated with the culminating moment of the Renaissance. The wars of Charles VIII and Louis XII, though they dealt a death blow to Italy, brought new artistic life to France. French warriors returned from Italy with the wonders of southern Europe on their lips and her treasures in their hands. So that at the time of Cellini's arrival in France in September, 1540, French palaces had become fitting shrines for the works of such a master, as well as for the sumptuous furnishings that formed part of the loot obtained in the Italian wars.

"The American soldiers of the Twentieth century, in turn, have lived for a brief time in the atmosphere of French art. Is it not natural that they, too, should acquire a discrimination which will influence all with whom they come in contact and thus spread an appreciation of that 'touch of French genius' which marks so many of our exquisite silken fabrics?"

UNSAFE TO TEASE SWANS

Blow From the Male's Wing Has Power to Break the Ordinary Man's Leg.

Swans can fly at the rate of 100 miles an hour. No one knows how long they can keep on the wing, but the trip from Scandinavia to Britain seems to be merely a pleasant flutter. They pass from one side of Canada to the other in huge flocks at certain times of the year and at very high altitudes.

It is not safe to tease or seek familiarity with swans in summer time when cygnets, as young swans are called; are about, says London Tit-Bits. The male swan is very pugnacious then, as a bather in the Thames found to his cost quite recently.

There is a traditional impression that a blow from a swan's wing will break an average man's leg, and there is on record a case of the death of a fox from such a blow.

The force of the swan's wing blow is emphasized in a story from Buckinghamshire, which records the attack of a male swan on a boat being rowed near the nest. The pinion struck the gunwale of the craft, and as a result was laid bare to the bone, being stripped of both feathers and skin.

The Main Point.

Mrs. Wombat had another cook and the first dinner was a sad affair. The potatoes were soggy, the steak was raw and the odor of scorched soup greeted Mr. Wombat as he entered the front door. He knew this signal of yore, but advanced cheerily.

"How's the new cook?" he asked his wife.

Mrs. Wombat put it all into a very brief sentence.

"She can't cook!"

Nothing, however, could dismay the incorrigible optimist.

"Perhaps we can cure that," he said. "The question is—will she stay awhile?"

Order Has Spread.

The Order of De Molay was organized in Kansas City, April 1, 1919, by Frank S. Land, secretary of the social service and employment bureaus at the Scottish Rite temple. Since that time the movement has spread from coast to coast and to several foreign countries. De Molay is an order for young men between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one. It is sponsored by the Masonic lodge. The order is based on the closing events in the life of Jacques de Molay, grand master of the order of Knights Templar, burned at the stake in 1229 by decree of Philip the Fair, king of France.

Wanted It Settled.

The old man regarded his last unmarried daughter critically.

"Let me see, Alice," he reflected, "young Smythe has been calling on you regularly for six or eight months, hasn't he?"

"Yes, father," simpered Alice.

"Well," continued her parent, "if he asks you to marry him when he comes tonight tell him to see me. Understand?"

"Yes," giggled Alice. "But suppose he doesn't ask me to marry him?"

"H'm!" reflected papa. "In that case just tell him I want to see him."

Does Away With Ocean Peril.

The latest in wireless direction finders has been installed on the steamship Mauretania. With this device it is possible to ascertain in a few seconds a ship's bearing toward any one land wireless station. If touch is secured with two or more stations, the exact position of the vessel is found by cross-bearings. The value of such a direction finder in thick or hazy weather is obvious.

See This Demonstration of the Wonders of

"ARMOR GLASS!"

See a Steel-Jacketed .45 Calibre Pistol Bullet Fired Point-Blank at Armor Glass Without Shattering or Smashing The Glass.

Tomorrow at 12 o'clock a public demonstration will be held at the State Armory, showing for the first time in Kingston, the bullet-proof and non-shatterable qualities of ARMOR GLASS. This will be a demonstration of one of the most remarkable scientific achievements of the day.

SEE THE GLASS THAT CANNOT SHATTER

Think of a glass you can hit with a sledge-hammer and it will not splinter! A glass you can hit with a bullet and it will not scatter! Glass is a universal necessity. It has always been a universal danger. Today ARMOR GLASS does away with all dangers of accidents from flying splinters of shattered glass. It is a scientifically prepared glass, as clear, yet tougher, than plate glass, that can absolutely withstand any shock or concussion without scattering or shattering.

ARMOR GLASS is a revolutionary achievement, a commercial necessity.

SPECIAL INVITATION TO BANK OFFICIALS

Armor Glass is a remarkable and absolute protection for banks. Police Department tests (such as the one to be demonstrated in Kingston) have proved that, in thicknesses of ¾ inch and over, a high powered .45 calibre pistol bullet cannot penetrate Armor Glass when fired from a distance of only three feet!

A bank equipped with such protection will, unquestionably, appeal very strongly to depositors.

We invite you to a demonstration that will be of great interest.

ARMOR GLASS

Boiler Gauge Guards
Divers' Apparatus, etc.

SPECIAL INVITATION TO MOTORISTS AND CAR DEALERS

Armor Glass designed for wind-shields and car windows is absolutely non-shatterable. 14,000 persons were killed in automobile accidents in 1922. Many of these were from flying glass! You can ride safely behind Armor Glass. It is tougher than plate glass, and as clear. It is shatter-proof and scatter-proof.

Every car owner should protect his family and himself with Armor Glass.

We especially invite Car Dealers to this demonstration. They will appreciate the wisdom and profit in investigating this scientific wonder—non-shatterable glass.

110 DISASTERS IN YEAR ENLIST RED CROSS AID

Nearly $400,000 Spent in United States — Greek Refugee Work Completed.

For its preparedness to render relief through effective and generous aid to the sufferers from disaster the American Red Cross is universally regarded as the one organization from which response to appeal for help is immediate. In the last year, according to the annual report of the Red Cross, its disaster relief operations were carried out in 110 localities in the United States. This work, with activities carried over from the previous year, required the expenditure in the United States of $397,465.04 by the American Red Cross, its Chapters and Branches. In the emergency following the defeat of the Greek forces in Turkey and the burning of the city of Smyrna, which entailed the relief of nearly 900,000 men, women and children, Red Cross National Headquarters expended $2,605,696.09. The food distributed in Greece aggregated 25,000 tons; garments, 809,000; blankets, 48,550; new shoes, 5,000 pairs; medical, hospital and sanitary supplies, 304 tons. In the feeding of the refugees there was listed upwards of 22,669 children under three years of age.

The disasters in the United States during the past year reported 249 persons killed, 891 injured, 12,691 rendered homeless. The total property loss was estimated at $20,710,000.

Relief of suffering caused by disasters of such magnitude as to overwhelm the resources of the communities in which they occur is fundamental to the charter of the American Red Cross. In addition to making appropriations from its treasury and assigning trained personnel to relief work, the Red Cross in disaster centralizes and makes more effective relief funds and supplies contributed by the country at large.

Since 1881 the Red Cross has administered more than $20,000,000 for the single purpose of disaster relief. That it may continue to accept the responsibilities which grave emergencies place upon the American Red Cross appeal is made for a nation-wide renewal of membership during the annual roll call, which opens on Armistice Day, November 11, and closes on Thanksgiving Day, November 29.

Life Saving Work Of Red Cross Corps Wars on Drownings

The insignia of the American Red Cross Life Saving Corps on the bathing apparel of men, women and youths is seen everywhere at favorite bathing places along the coasts, rivers, lakes and ponds. In its unrelenting campaign to reduce loss of life by drowning the Red Cross is making constant headway. The demands for instruction from organizations in all parts of the country were so numerous the past year that it was necessary to more than double the staff of Red Cross instructors. This work of training for water life-saving showed an enrollment of over 30,000 volunteers enlisted for duty on patrol, for rescue and resuscitation, all competent to instruct others in the standard water-safety methods. The Red Cross by request of the War Department gives water first aid training at the United States Military and Naval academies and in the military training camps for reserve officers and civilians. The four cash prizes awarded by the Red Cross last year for heroic rescues were conferred upon two girls, a boy and a man, indicating that the youths of the country stand well at the top in conserving life along our water courses.

Red Cross Field Of Action Covers All the World

Represented by 93,668 members, the American Red Cross penetrates to nearly every part of the world. The insular and foreign roll call statistics for the past year are a most conclusive manifestation of the Red Cross spirit carried into the most remote lands. In Europe there are 4,088 members; in Turkey, and active in the Constantinople Chapter, 3,545. China has an enrollment of 2,252; Africa, 136; India, 224, and Australia, 29. Even Vladivostok, in frigid Siberia, has a live chapter with 100 members. The Philippine Islands can mobilize 58,747 under the Red Cross banner and Hawaii 7,863. The total funds raised through foreign and insular membership enrollment and sent to national headquarters in Washington mounted to $60,216.54, while an additional $33,350 was forwarded for the endowment fund of the American Red Cross. The high seas roll call in 1922 was an inspiring success. The Navy signed on 4,331 for the Red Cross and the merchant ships 4,141. Of the total membership outside the United States 83,990 are registered with chapters in foreign lands, the insular possessions and dependencies.

"I want to: therefore I can!" is the spirit that spurs the Red Cross worker in well-doing.

HADN'T HEARD OF EGGLESTON

Small Wonder That Ignorance of Tourists Excited Indignation of Indiana Official.

The town of Vevay snugly nestling in picturesque hills along the Ohio river in Switzerland county, has two show places of which it is particularly proud, according to Jim Wright, Vevay's postmaster.

The two special features of interest to which Vevay folk point with pride is an unusual view of a stretch of the Ohio river and the old home of Edward Eggleston, author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster." Now and then the pride of the citizen who points out these two places gets a jolt, Mr. Wright said. One was delivered the other day at the Vevay library where tourists asked the librarian whether the town had anything of historic interest.

"We have, indeed," replied the librarian. "We have the old home of Edward Eggleston."

"Eggleston, Eggleston," remarked one of the tourists, "and who was he?"

"The stinging part of it," Wright said, "was that these tourists were from Cincinnati, where our women do some of their shopping when they go out of town. Think of it—such ignorance."

Mr. Wright tells of a woman from the arid Southwest visiting Vevay not long ago with her little daughter. The child come from a land where irrigation ditches contain most of the water. Filled with amazement on her first view of the Ohio river the youngster cried excitedly to her mother: "Mamma, wherever in the world did they get such a big ditch?"—Indianapolis News.

BREAKFAST OF TODAY SIMPLE

Yale Professor Tells Students Habits Have Radically Changed in Recent Years.

Food fads are as common as clothing fads, according to Dr. Lafayette B. Mendel, professor of chemistry at Yale, who lectured at the University of Washington recently.

Habits, not fundamental principles, have undergone radical changes within ten years, he said. The breakfast once demanded comprised cereal, pork chops, eggs or steak (occasionally two of these protein foods), hot breads, coffee, flapjacks and sometimes pie or cake. Today's morning meal, Doctor Mendel pointed out, begins with fruit, rings many changes on cereals, counts hard toast especially beneficial if made from entire wheat, substitutes a coddled, soft-boiled or poached egg for the one-time fried product, and ends more often than not with milk or cocoa.

Professor Mendel attributed some of these changes to altered economic conditions, and improved methods of food transportation and preservation. Most important, he explained, are changes in views as to what constitutes food. He said that animal husbandry experiments conducted in this country 12 years ago have been vital influences in the study of human nutrition. In other words, balanced rations for cows, hogs and chickens preceded knowledge of proper foods for human beings.

Naturally.

It is difficult to take a good moving picture of a lion. He becomes temperamental as soon as he discovers he is to appear on the screen.

TO the Defendants, Frank R. Baumann and Elizabeth H. Arnold Baumann, his wife, and W. H. Heard doing business under the trade name and style of The Separator Company.

The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication pursuant to an order of Hon. Charles B. Nichols, a Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, dated the 15th day of October, 1923, and filed with the complaint in the office of the Clerk of the County of Ulster, in the City of Kingston, Ulster County, in said State.

The object of this action is to foreclose a mortgage, bearing date February 18, 1915, executed by the defendants, Frank R. Baumann and Elizabeth H. Arnold Baumann, his wife, to the plaintiffs William W. Donaldson and Florence E. Donaldson, and recorded in the office of the Clerk of Ulster County, N. Y. on February 20, 1915, in Book No. 313 of Mortgages, at page 302, given to secure the payment of the sum of $500.00 as therein specified.

The real property and title to which affected by this action is described in said mortgage as follows:

All that tract or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Esopus, County of Ulster and State of New York, being all of a certain wood lot belonging to parties of first part which lies west of a public road which runs through said wood lot and is described as follows:

Beginning in the center of the above mentioned road in the south bounds of the lands formerly of Josiah Hasbrouck and runs thence along said bounds N. 80° 30' W. 32 chains 50 links to a stone in the southwest corner of said lot; thence further along said bounds N. 35° 45' N. 23 chains 70 links to a stone in the northwest corner of said lot; thence further along said bounds of said lot S. 84° 3' E. 20 chains 15 links to the center of above mentioned road; thence along the same S. 20° W. 3 chains 00 links; S. 10° 30' E. 6 chains 62 links; S. 36° 15' W. 2 chains 6 links; S. 40° 30' W. 3 chains 77 links; S. 14° 30' W. 1 chain 27 links; S. 33° 30' W. 3 chains; S. 13° 25' W. 6 chains 10 links to the place of beginning, containing 51 acres and 82-100 of an acre, be the same more or less.

SACRIFICES KIN FOR ANOTHER MAN

Wife Admits Lack of Mother Love After Being Married 14 Years.

DIVORCE TO HUSBAND

Los Angeles, Cal.—A strange story of a mother who confessed that she lacked "mother love," and who admitted that another had come into her life to replace the father of her children, was told in Judge Hardy's court recently, when Clinton A. Pedrick was granted a divorce from Louise M. Pedrick.

The Pedricks had been married 14 years. There are three children. Under the direction of his attorney, Leon Yanwich, the husband told a rather remarkable story.

Seemed Devoid of Motherhood.

"She was absolutely untrustworthy," he said, in describing his wife. "I never knew when I came home at night whether I would find her there or not. She seemed devoid of motherhood. She would leave the children apparently without a thought. So I had to keep a maid all the time for the protection of the kiddies.

"Time and again I remonstrated with her, but it was useless. At last she went away, and I haven't seen her since."

The wife's side of the story was told in a letter which she had written her husband. In this missive she did not seek to evade her responsibility. She accepted it, but she had added: "If you had not treated me as a child, but more as a woman, it might have been different."

Wife Admits Other Man.

In part, the letter read:

"Dear—There is no use beating around the bush any longer. I am leaving for good. There isn't enough mother love in me to give up my life. It is foolish of me to make any more promises I can't keep.

"You know in the last seven years there has always been a third party. I have made promises before, you know. Some have lasted two weeks, and some two years. So what is the use of going into it again? It only means a bigger battle each time.

"I don't think there is any love on either side any more. You won't need to worry. If you want a divorce, go ahead; I will not oppose it. I don't want anything that belongs to you. I would like the privilege of seeing the children once in a while, in case I am near enough. But if you feel that I should not, it will be all right.

"There is no use blaming any one else for this. It has been coming for some time. I am simply dissatisfied. There is no need to blame this other one, for if it had not been him there would have been some one else. He was encouraged by me.

"There is something missing between us. It is more of the feeling I would have for a father rather than to a husband. It has always been that way. You have treated me like you would treat the children, not as though I was a woman. So just let's quit friends."

Flies Betrayed Booze Runner.

Fremont, O.—When flies swarmed around an automobile parked near here, Deputy Sheriff Sterner became suspicious. He investigated and found 12 cases of beer. Samuel R. Cook, forty-three years old, who was charged a fine, was arrested.

Child Smothered by Bales of Hay.

Fond du Lac, Mich.—Buried beneath two bales of hay weighing 200 pounds, five-year-old David Kenny of Fond du Lac was smothered to death. The child was playing in a barn when the bales of hay toppled on him.

General Metaxas.

General Metaxas, of the Greek army, at the head of 2,000 troops, has demanded the resignation of the present Government, headed by Premier Gonatas. The proclamation announcing the revolution, however, failed to shake the Greek Ministry, and Metaxas is reported to fight with his followers. The revolt is characterized as a royalist move to regain power.

Discord Is Common.

A piece of furniture that is not in keeping with a room may quite ruin it. Even though the offending piece is costly and good looking, if it is at odds with the other pieces and with the room it should be banished. Perhaps the most usual culprit in this respect is the Morris chair. Many households have one of these left over from an earlier period and place it in the living room with mahogany or walnut built on classic lines. To do so is to create discord and spoil the room.

Tell This at Dinner.

Patrick, aged three months, sat on his father's knee yelling lustily, while on the other knee sat his twin brother testing the elasticity of his parent's mustache. An elder brother hung on the chair back, while a fourth was indulging in the childish amusement of endeavoring to cut small pieces off the cat's tail. Wife (looking up from a book of interesting facts): "They do say, Barney, that a child is born every time the clock ticks." "Thin bad luck to the haythin that invented clocks!" said Barney.

Exercise Must Be Regular.

Exercise becomes of value only when it is taken regularly. Normal persons should walk several miles every day, and should make the practice a habit. There is no hope for the nervous individual whose bad habits have made him flabby and devoid of stamina. He cannot be well if his muscles lack tone. Irregularity in rising in the morning is another pernicious habit. Lying abed after the regular hour of rising makes for muscular and moral flabbiness.

That Was Different.

I was calling on a friend one afternoon when our conversation drifted to an election. It was shortly after the time women were given the vote. I remarked that if some of the women would stay at home instead of trying to help so much, the election might have been different. My friend informed me then she had been out all day and thought she had done her duty. I made some excuse to go as soon as possible.—Chicago Tribune.

How Heat Affects Steel.

The heating of cast steel will affect the strength, either to increase or to decrease it, according to how the heating is done. Alloys ordinarily classed as "babbitts" melt at a relatively low temperature—400 degrees C. (775 degrees F.) may be given as an approximate temperature at which most of such alloys are entirely molten. Heating cast steel to such a temperature ought not to change the material appreciably.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to serious complications.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Your wife cooks over a thousand meals a year

ISN'T she entitled to a range that will help her do it better, cheaper and quicker?

Men seldom realize how big a help modern, economical kitchen equipment is to a woman.

A good range like the Andes will soon pay for itself with the fuel it saves. But it does a good deal more than that.

It makes a woman's work easier and quicker in every way. It cooks better meals. It calls for less care. It makes cooking a pleasure instead of a chore.

When your wife tells you she wants a modern fuel-saving Andes Range, just remember that she cooks you a thousand meals a year.

She's earned it!

ANDES RANGES
"Better Cooking For Less Money"

This Andes Range is famous as a good baker

The range illustrated above is the No. 26 Andes—a combination coal and gas range 46 inches wide.

It comes in a variety of finishes, including a beautiful model in porcelain enamel and nickel.

Two 18-inch gas ovens above. One 18-inch gas broiler with large glass doors that let you keep an eye on everything all the time without opening doors and wasting heat.

A big 20-inch coal oven below.

Four holes for coal. Four large gas burners with a simmering burner and automatic lighter for gas.

For better, quicker and more convenient cooking and for fuel economy this range has no equal anywhere.

Come in and we will be glad to show you this No. 26 Combination Range and other Andes models.

Send for Free Booklet describing many different Andes models

YOUNG & ROBERTS STARTED CLUB

land Post was introduced by Miss Roberts as the next speaker because his business compelled him to return home early. She said he had been a splendid help during the campaign and wished the county was full of Ernest Haights.

Mr. Haight said the influence of women in all spheres of life must make people who think, stop and pause. In coming to this meeting, his mind went back to Abraham Lincoln's time and he wished to quote a paragraph from Lincoln's second inaugural, which he read It was the paragraph of which the best known quotation includes, "With malice toward none, with charity for all." This, he said, was a splendid motto.

Just because the club was not doing things in cut-and-dried fashion, it should not get the idea it was not in the right. The club should finish the work it was engaged in Its members had undertaken to effect an organization as to how best to carry on certain principles There are times when the club must take a stand to influence people for law enforcement. The thing which focuses attention on law enforcement now is the fact that those who have the responsibility of law enforcement forget their responsibility and take a stand which is not only unlawful but is due to their own selfish tastes. But this club would let them know there is a body in Ulster county which stands for law enforcement

These people, said Mr. Haight, have no right to speak flippantly of the Volstead law any more than they have a right to speak flippantly of the law against murder

Mr Haight then took up the subject of the direct primary law which, he said had come nearest to being a direct primary law when a former governor of New York had been espousing its cause, but in the political game it had been since pulled and hauled He believed, however, there was a way to make it highly representative of the people, and that this club had come into existence at the right time The direct primary was being taken away step by step, but with women in politics he believed it was impossible to improve it, to change it so as to make it impossible for a man to call himself a Republican and yet vote with Tammany Hall Yet such a man, and his friends, had the nerve to talk about loyalty. With the influence of women in politics, we could yet have the freedom and liberty which is our rightful heritage.

Attacks are being made on our liberty today by those who prate of freedom yet wink at violations because they are influenced by those who are themselves law violators. Instead of handing us bread, such people hand us a stone Those who wink at or speak in favor of violation of the Volstead Act are helping to rear the hideous head of Bolshevism

In conclusion, Mr Haight told the story of the boys who went to a British commander in the early days of the Revolutionary War and protested against the soldiers destroying their snow forts; they had complained to the captain, but he had laughed at them, so they came to the highest officer And that officer had said that even the boys of America imbibed liberty in the very air they breathed. The mothers of those boys, he said, were the forerunners of American liberty.

Judge Clearwater's Address.

Judge Clearwater was next introduced by Miss Roberts who said it was not necessary to say that there was present one of the greatest men Kingston had produced, but simply to say that Judge Clearwater was present and would now speak The judge was given a flattering ovation

He said:

Judge Clearwater said that it seems necessary to impress upon the minds of each new generation of voters that our system of government was a representative system. By that he meant that it differed from the old democracies in that we selected representatives to represent the electors in the different bodies that made the laws. Thus it was that we elected Assemblymen, State Senators, Congressmen and United States Senators, by popular vote. The method that prevailed among the democracies of Greece of the Aegean and the Roman Republic had been discarded by the framers of the Constitution of the United States, who had chosen the representative system and framed the most perfect political document that had emanated from the hand of man In this system of representative government, parties had been evolved The parties representing the divergent views of the electors we have the Federalists, the Whig, the Know-nothing, the Greenback, the Republican, the Democratic and the Prohibition parties representing views of considerable bodies of citizens of the country. "Parties," said the judge, were an essential feature of representative government. They of necessity were governed by rules Among them was a code of honorable conduct, a canon of which was that a member of one of the parties should support a party candidate unless there was some substantial moral reason for not doing so. The fact that the candidate differed from the elector upon individual features of party action was not a sufficient reason for voting against him provided he had been selected by the party in the manner by which the party regularly selected its candidates. Thus it was that people who without just cause habitually voted against a candidate of their party were held in less esteem not only by the members of their own party, but by the members of all parties, because of the violation of the unwritten code of political honor. All parties were pledged to the enforcement of the laws. It made no difference whether the law and Constitutional provision was unacceptable to the individual elector, so long as it was the law or so long as it remained a constitutional provision, it was his duty to uphold it, no matter how distasteful or unacceptable it might be, and any party no matter by what name it called itself or any citizen who habitually repudiated or violated a law or a Constitutional provision, ipso facto forfeited the regard and esteem in which every good citizen desired to be held.

He said he came to the meeting as a Republican, he regarded the Republican party, particularly at this juncture as best representing the aspirations and purposes of the American people. It largely was composed of sober minded earnest, thoughtful citizens who desired the prosperity not only of people of their own party, but of the people of all parties, it was pledged not only to support the best interests of the American people, but to the enforcement of all laws approved by them We hear much talk, said the judge, of the spacious days of Queen Elizabeth There never was a time in the history of the world when the days were as spacious as they are at this hour. There never was a period when life was so broad, so fine, so full of opportunity as today, and notwithstanding the pessimism of clergymen and of publicists; there never was a time when the intellectual, moral, physical and financial condition of the American people stood as high as at this moment it did We hear, said he, of sporadic outbreaks against the law. We are told that the American people are becoming a nation of law breakers. If that were true, we soon would become political outcasts, but it is untrue There is, of course, violation of the law; there always has been, and there always will be violation of the law, but the vast majority of the American people today are what they always have been, and what they always will be, God-fearing, law-abiding, tax-paying, honest, upright citizens Now that women have become so important a factor in American political life, it is well that at the outset they should consider the canons and ruling principles of political existence, and among the first was loyalty to the party under whose banner they enroll. It was not fair and it certainly was dishonorable to enroll under the banner of a party with deliberate intent to repudiate its candidates because of a disagreement upon some public question, and women like men should beware of the delusion that a disagreement upon a public question was a disagreement about morals Always it was the aim of ill-balanced people and of fanatic enthusiasts to convert every public question into one of morals, this engendered bitterness, as feeling of hatred which sometimes endured for a lifetime. He thought from his observation that the women of the country were quite as eager and determined as were the men to see that government properly and honestly was conducted. But that it was not improbable, they might occasionally fall into the error of treating political questions from an emotional or moral standpoint; which always was a mistake In talking with public men, he had found that universally they said that an audience of women as a rule was as attentive and apparently as discriminating as an audience of similar size composed of men, the men who did say so spoke of it not in terms of compliment but as stating a fact If the fact were true it augured well because inevitably in more ways than one, women could exert a most potent influence if they exercised discrimination and intelligence. The judge was heartily applauded throughout his address and when he finished it.

Admiral Higginson Favors Prohibition.

Admiral Higginson said that the question at the present time before the voters of Ulster county seemed to him a very simple one and that was "Law Enforcement" or "Non-enforcement." He said he strongly believed in law enforcement and endorsed the position of the Women's Harding Republican Club as being the only one for a loyal American.

Mrs. Van Ness On Politics.

Mrs Van Ness, of New Jersey, the next speaker, who spoke at the organization of the club, said there was one thing she could not understand in the addresses she had listened to, "We speak from the standpoint of personality," she said, 'and not from principle"

Up to the time of equal suffrage, there never had been political schools for men. But when women began to vote, such schools were established, and she had attended them.

She had learned, and had taught, that the government was conducted by political parties which were founded on fundamental principals, and fundamental principles, she had learned, were things which always act and never change. The Democratic party sees the individual first, the Republican party sees the nation first. Every Democrat will look at matters from the individual standpoint, and Republicans will view them from the standpoint of the greatest good to the greatest number.

One of the learned gentleman speakers had said that the legislator must be given the right of individual opinion and judgment . That was true. She had been a legislator herself, in New Jersey. She could not go back every time she was to vote on one of the thousand odd bills passed and consult everyone, but when a vote came which involved a great question of principle, she voted from principle and not because of party. When individuals refuse to act for the greatest good to the greatest number, they are disloyal.

She was glad to hear the speaker say that women should have a standard of political principles, but was there to be a double standard? There had been too much of that already.

Mrs. Van Ness said that the preceding speakers had taken the privilege of reading quotations and she intended to read something also. She read the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, without emphasizing any especial word or words.

There are three angles to the Prohibition movement, she said. The first is the Eighteenth Amendment itself. Of the nineteen amendments, this was the only one which gives states concurrent power with congress, to pass enforcement legislation. So, the second angle to Prohibition is that states should adopt enforcement laws. After this, the question arose, what constitute intoxicating beverages, and that question is determined by the Volstead law, which fixed one-half of one per cent of alcohol as intoxicating because the American Medical Association had said so, and because the brewers had said so when paying revenue taxes.

Various arguments are made against the Volstead act, but the reason for all this talk is primarily that persons who raise these questions are looking at the question from the standpoint of self rather than considering the cause itself. The place for wet Republicans is in the Democratic party. They say it cannot be enforced because it is not popular. The answer is, has enforcement been tried? Prohibition enforcement officials are not appointed on merit but to reward the "faithful," who are hand-in-hand with the bootleggers. The laws against killing and murder were written originally on tablets of stone, but officers have been busy ever since enforcing them.

The whole question is political, but women should not be disturbed over that fact. No practical politician believes the next candidate for president of either party will have a wet plank in his platform.

Says Women Are Intimidated.

Mrs. Van Ness referred to the rule adopted by the Ulster County Republican Committee and said, "Since when did the party become infallible?" The party is made up of an aggregation of units, and for the committee to adopt such a rule would be like her own husband telling her that because they were married she must not do any talking. Women, she said, fail to come out to vote because they are intimidated. She had heard one gentleman speak of women praying They might do that in church, but not in politics. All that was needed in politics was the enumeration table

Liar Should Not Be Afraid.

She referred to the fact that an Ulster county woman had received a letter from a lawyer threatening to sue her for libel or slander for statements she had made, whereupon the woman had become frightened and run home and kept quiet. She wished a lawyer would write her that kind of a letter and she knew what she would tell him. If women would tell the truth, there would never be a libel suit against them. A woman does pretty much as she wants to, and can always find time for one more thing, so they could take part in politics without neglecting their home or family. She was active in politics because she wanted her children to enjoy the same privileges she does, but there are people who don't want the people to enjoy their present privileges and are working against them. She could not understand the attitude of men who would stand by men who had neglected their duty as public officials simply because they had been brought up together from boys and had always been friends. "It gets me," said Mrs Van Ness. "No woman I know of would do that. If it were my husband or my children, I would have to work against them if they were unfaithful to duty.

J. Wells Weaver Talks.

J. Wells Weaver, who was a candidate for the Republican nomination for assemblyman in the September primary election, thanked those present for the help they had given him in his fight He said he had prepared a number of questions, which included: Who is loyal to the Republican party—the candidate who puts up an honest fight for clean politics or the candidate who solicits the votes of Democrats? Should not our representatives stand by their own party? Mr Weaver spoke along practically the same line as he did at the recent meeting of the Citizens' League.

Mrs. Young Speaks.

Mrs. Edward Young of Milton spoke of "This second Whisky Rebellion," and said that she once asked why in excise cases in Kingston there never was a case where the right side won She was told public sentiment was not in favor of conviction in excise cases She told her informant she would show him, and would come to Kingston to see about it. So she and several other women decided to see the district attorney. This was a number of years ago. They came to Kingston ---it was another story of how the district attorney tried to keep her away—and he said, there was a case in Marlborough where he could not get the evidence. She returned to Marlborough and talked to the man who had the evidence. He showed her the evidence but said he would not give it up. But she said she would win a case anyway, and went to work, and the next term of court a Marlborough case was won—the second excise case won in Ulster county.

Call for Dr. Chase.

Miss Roberts asked if Dr. Chase was present and would come forward, but there was no response—Dr. Chase was not present.

Others Speak Briefly.

Mrs. Weed of The Huntington spoke briefly, saying the city workers had been disappointed with the men and women of Kingston—more particularly with the women who had turned—"Shall I say traitors" she added. "No, I will not call them such."

Mrs. Clarence Eltinge spoke briefly of what she had done in her district in the pre-primary campaign, from the time she talked to delegates to working at the polls on election day.

Courtesy Surprised Her.

Miss Scott also spoke briefly and praised the courtesy she had received especially from election boards which was surprising after what she had been told.

Where Democrats Stand.

Mrs. Van Ness said she was not acquainted with local conditions but was speaking generally. What she wanted to emphasize was that the members of the club should not let the spirit of bitterness remain in them. "If you've lost, be good sports. While you may have picked out a high class man, if he's a Democrat, remember that if he goes to Albany he has to work with the Democratic party, and many, many of them are from New York, from Tammany Hall."

"Who Shall We Support."

One of the men present said this brought up the question of "Who we are going to support?"

"Personally," said the man, "I cannot support Mr. Van Wagenen."

Club Gives No Advice.

"We regret very much that we could not have a perfectly good candidate," said Miss Roberts, president of the club. "It does not seem advisable for the club to advise people what to do, but the club leaves it to the individual conscience of the members. But I hope we never will be confronted with the same situation. It certainly is a most disgusting situation."

The meeting then adjourned, at 5:20 o'clock, and the members enjoyed refreshments at von Berg's Restaurant.

EUROPE HAS GAMBLING MANIA

Returning Traveler Says Speculation Is the Ruling Passion in the Old World.

A discouraged returning traveler draws a dolorous picture of the Europe he left behind him. Over there, he finds, the ruling passion is the gambling mania. He sees it in the nefarious activities of profiteers, the speculations in "valuta," the "Schieber" and the "Schleichhaendler," who are viewed as such a menace that the German government plans to put the worst offenders to death and mete out hard-labor sentences to the others. He sees it in the crowds rushing to bet on the races and besieging the government lotteries. In the casinos of noted watering places the players for high stakes are deaf to the appeal of less fortunate countrymen with beggingbowls in the bread lines of the refugees, according to the Philadelphia Public Ledger. The feverish atmosphere of greed for gain without production, of sybaritic pleasure-seeking and selfish, careless lotus-eating, this observer holds, is inimical to art and culture. The soul shrivels and dies.

But that is not all the picture. What a tourist sees is largely episodic, accidental. He is in danger always of mistaking part of the whole, a phase for the entire phenomenon. Beneath the superficial the current of the hidden life of every land runs still and deep. The frivolous minority is overbalanced by the great majority not minded to take chances with demagogues who promise much and deliver little. From all over the earth "crime waves" are reported like seismic shocks, but somehow the stable equilibrium of society returns.

"Science stays," said a man of science; and the truth lives on through political vicissitude, economic debacle, the impairment of social morale and all the evils that follow in the wake of the irruptions of militarism. "God would not let us get at the matchbox so often as He does," wrote Lowell to a friend, "did He not know that the frame of His universe is fireproof."

SCIENCE AIDS IN ARMY DRILL

Loud-Speaking Apparatus on Motor Truck Enables All to Hear Orders Easily.

If 250 lusty-lunged sergeants of the regular army should get together and shout "Fall in," in their best drill-ground style, the effect would scarcely equal that of the voice amplifier recently purchased by the signal corps and installed in mobile form on a motortruck. The new equipment can be used to handle large bodies of troops, to make speeches and music audible to assemblies, or to supply entertainment received by radio.

The apparatus is technically known as a public address system. Sounds are picked up by a high-grade transmitter placed a few feet from the speaker, or near the bandmaster's stand, if music is to be handled. The electrical output of this transmitter is increased about one-half million times, using a four-stage vacuum tube amplifier. Then the current goes into a group of six horns, mounted on a folding tripod. Under ordinarily quiet conditions, a compact crowd of 750,000 people could hear a man speaking in an ordinary voice, through the use of this system.—Scientific American.

Monument to Fabre.

A committee headed by General de Castelnau, and including leading educators and officials of the French department of Aveyron, is arranging for the erection of a statue to Jean Henri Fabre, who wrote books about insects that were more interesting than romances. The monument, now being executed by the sculptor Malet, will be placed on the central square of Saint-Leons, the village where Fabre spent his childhood. The committee considered this peaceful spot the most appropriate for a statue of the "noblest and purest son of Aveyron."

Deuce of a Question.

A master in a large school called upon Smith, who stutters, to parse the sentence:

"The propinquity of the porcupine made pot-shotting at the hippopotamus virtually impossible."

Smith gave a wild glance around the room and said: "P-p-p-professor, now ain't t-t-t-that a deuce of a question to ask me?"

New Ballot Needed.

When 40 women met recently to form a musical club in W——, and were asked to write on slips of paper the name of their choice for president, the organization of the club had to be abandoned because the nominating committee found on the slips the names of 39 of those present. The fortieth slip bore the word "Me."—Musical Courier.

Another Point of View.

Mr. Courtney (flatteringly)—I had the blues awfully when I came here tonight, Miss Fisher, but they are all gone now. You are as good as medicine.

SCHUSTER SMILES AS BULLETS HIT

"That's Seventy-Eighth Time I've Been Shot, but I'm Still Alive," He Says as Police Bullets Flatten Against Bullet-proof Vest.

With a smile on his face, short, chubby Jack Schuster watched Daniel Breisacher point a .38 calibre Colt revolver at him Thursday afternoon and as the trigger was pulled and the gun spoke with a sharp crack, he said: "Well, that's the seventy-seventh time I have been shot at, but I'm still here." If Schuster, however, had not been wearing a bullet proof vest his friends would have been remarking today "Doesn't he look natural."

It was a demonstration of this vest, the invention of Leo Krause, a New York city business man, that was staged at the city hall Thursday afternoon by Messr. Schuster and Breisacher, of the Bullet Proof Vest Corporation, before the members of the board of police commissioners, and as many members of the police department as were able to be relieved of duty and attend.

The two demonstrators had made the trip up from New York Thursday and at about 5:30 o'clock that afternoon arrangements were made to hold the demonstration in the room formerly used by the board of health before that board removed to its present quarters on the opposite side of the corridor.

Mr. Schuster had worn the vest from New York and said that the weight, about twelve pounds, was so evenly distributed that it did not prove a burden. The vest is made of a composition of metals and is covered by cloth, which may be of any color desired.

When the board of police commissioners and the members of the police department had entered the room Schuster removed his coat, leaving the vest exposed. At a casual glance one would not know that the man before him was wearing an armored vest as the cloth that covers the metal conceals that fact and it looks just like any ordinary vest at first glance.

"Any of you met got a gun with you?" asked Mr. Breisacher, turning to the policemen present.

Sergeant Charles Phinney produced his Colt revolver of .38 calibre and Mr Breisacher, seeing that it was fully loaded, said that he was ready to proceed with the demonstration.

"We have a doctor here," suggested Chief Wood with a smile nodding in the direction of Dr. Daniel Connelly, city health officer, who had dropped in to witness the demonstration.

"We are glad to have him with us, but assure you his services won't be needed," replied Breisacher with a smile.

Then stepping to within several feet of Schuster he fired directly at Schuster. As the gun crashed Schuster did not even stagger on his feet but remarked with a smile "well that's the 77th time."

Chief Wood then produced his Smith & Wesson 38 calibre revolver and handed it to Breisacher who placed the muzzle within a foot of Schuster's breast and pulled the trigger, but the human target did not even stagger.

"Well that's the 78th time boys," observed Schuster and then removing the vest he cut open the cloth and brought out the bullet which had been flattened to the thickness of a twenty-five cent piece.

Owing to the construction of the bullet proof vest the bullet as it hits the vest does not ricochet but is caught and held in the meshes of the goods covering the metal.

The Bullet Proof Vest Corporation is desirous of selling the local police department several of these vests, which cost $75 each and that was the reason for staging such a convincing demonstration of the claims made for the vest. These vests are not meant to be worn at all times, but in cities where police departments are equipped with the vests they are kept at police headquarters and worn only when men are sent out after dangerous criminals or are engaged in making a raid or performing riot duty.

It is expected that the matter will be taken up by the police board at the November meeting when it will be decided whether or not to purchase the vests for use of the local department.

MAN IS CLAWED BY EAGLE

Owner of Laundry Asks Police for Permit to Shoot Bird.

G. Frank Fossa, proprietor of a laundry at Nashua, N. H., was savagely attacked by a large bird, believed to be an eagle, and his face and hands were clawed, requiring the services of a physician.

Fossa was looking over a new smokestack on his laundry at the South end when the huge bird swooped from the air and beat him with its wings and clawed him about the face and hands. The day before the bird had attacked a painter who was at work on the stack and it was with difficulty that the painter beat off the bird and made his way to safety from the top of the 80-foot stack. Fossa has appealed to the police for permission to shoot the bird, which he believes to be an eagle.

Falls Dead at Small Fire in Plant.

Called from his bed early in the morning when a small fire was discovered in a plant which he owned with his brother, John J. Kloess of Belleville, Ill., rushed to the plant. He was found dead when the fire was extinguished. He was a victim of heart disease, doctors said.

POPPIES

An effective flower for a corsage decoration is the ribbon poppy. To make this flower 8 inches of 3 inch ribbon are required.

Fold this ribbon, seam it and run a gathering thread at lower edge, as in Fig. 1.

YOUNG BRIDE IS BRUTALLY SLAIN

Colorado Springs Girl Beaten to Death for Refusing to Violate Marriage Vows.

YOUNG SPANIARD HELD

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Elsie Jorgensen Suttle, fourteen-year-old girl bride, was murdered because she would not break her marriage vows for a former lover.

The murderer is believed to have gone to the Suttle home with a revolver or a hammer in his pocket. While the slayer was hammering the life out of Elsie with his weapon he pressed his knee on her chest, crushing it.

Jacinto Fernandez, Spanish youth, arrested in connection with the crime, defied grilling and punctuated his cross questioning with insulting remarks to the police.

Find Bloodstained Love Notes.

The detectives investigating the case intimate that evidence obtained in Murdered.

Colorado Springs and Denver makes the case a strong one against Fernandez.

The principal evidence is a packet of five "Jack" love notes, blood-saturated, found beneath the pillow of the slain girl. Police say they are confident Fernandez is the author of the letters.

Most of the notes are filled with insistent demands upon the girl to forsake her husband and run away with the man who had been her sweetheart before marriage.

Husband Suspected Wife.

A handwriting expert, called to compare the writing in the letters with that of Fernandez, reported that the writing bore "marked similarity."

R. H. Suttle, Jr., husband of the slain girl, said he suspected some one of prowling about his wife's boudoir window. He loaded a shotgun and placed it handy for a return of the unknown man. It was discovered that the young wife had picked the shot from the shells, police said.

Suttle suspected his wife of knowing who the prowler was, but when he asked questions she was silent. The prowler, it is known, sought a secret mailing box at the bedroom window and each day missives were exchanged.

This window was often open, and police say the "Jack" note author went inside in the absence of the husband.

Girl-Bride Breaks Window to Join "Hubby" in Jail

Worcester.—Because she wanted to go to jail to be with her husband, Beatrice Egnatosky, eighteen-year-old bride of 19 months, tossed a stone through a $150 plate-glass window and walked into police headquarters with the request that she be arrested.

Judge Riley refused her plea, however, ordering the case continued and the girl released. Court officials were unable to induce her to change her mind about wanting to go to jail. Her husband, Julius, was sentenced to a year for larceny, recently.

Arizona Land Opened to Veterans.

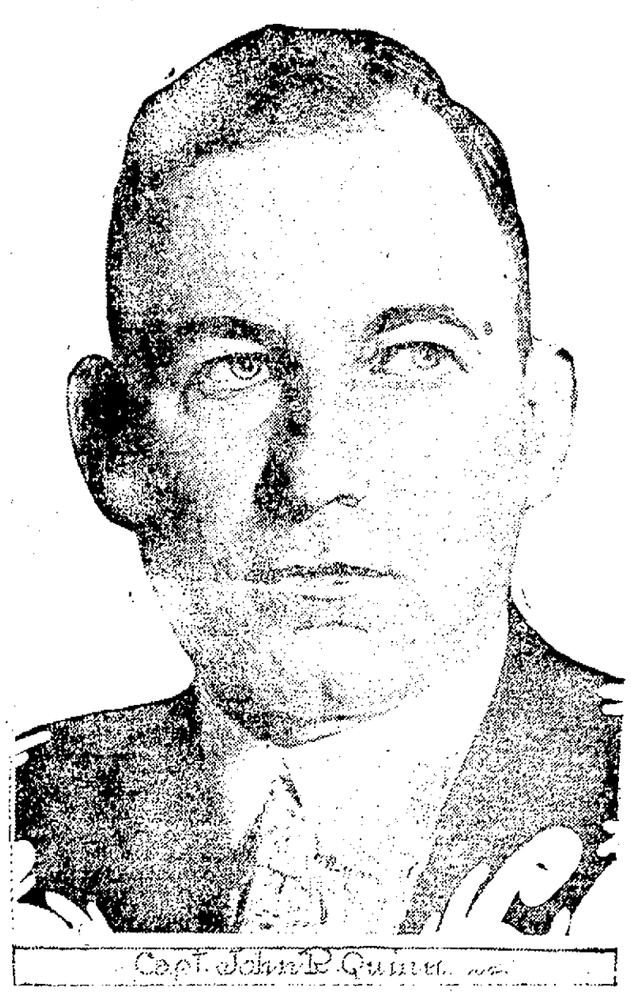
Queen Elizabeth and King George. INT.

King George and Queen Elizabeth of Greece will soon sail for the United States, personally to thank the people of America for the aid rendered Greece through the Near East Relief Commission. They will spend some weeks in California, where thethe King will study fruit growing methods. The California climate is said to be very similar to that of Greece.



Capt. John R. Quinn. INT.

Captain John R. Quinn in 1922, at New Orleans, invited the American Legion to meet in San Francisco in 1923, and to prove that the Legionaires appreciated the invitation and the good time they had in the Golden Gate City they elected Quinn their new National Commander. Quinn, who was born in Porterville, Cal., in 1889, lives now in Delano, Kern County, Cal. He graduated from the University of California in 1912, joined the Second Officers' Training Camp at the San Francisco Presidio and went overseas as Captain of Company F, 348, Field Artillery, staying with the Army of Occupation until 1919, when he returned home.

FAVORS DEEPER HUDSON PROJECT

The movement on foot for the deepening of the Hudson river was approved Thursday at the fall meeting of the Hudson Valley Federated Chambers of Commerce held in Newburgh. Kingston was represented at the meeting by Secretary Louis S. Coe of the Chamber of Commerce, Charles R. O'Connor and Thomas J. Comerford.

The speakers at the session that day were Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guarantee Trust Company of New York, and Mayor William S. Hackett of Albany.

PROTESTS SALE OF DAISIES FOR HOSPITAL AT STAMFORD

Not Run For Benefit of Veterans, Say American Legion Officers.

Kingston, October 26, 1923.

Editor, The Freeman:

There appeared in Thursday night's Freeman an article to the effect that on Saturday of this week, in furtherance of a campaign to raise funds for the Catskill Convalescent Home at Stamford, New York, five men in uniform would sell daisies on the streets of this city.

Kingston Post of the American Legion feels that it is its duty to call attention of the people of Kingston to the fact that inquiry and investigation conducted by the Post has established the fact that this hospital, far from being a charity hospital conducted for the benefit of disabled ex-service men, is a privately conducted institution to which anyone may be admitted who is able to pay for his care and maintenance.

As the representative organization of the ex-service men in this city, Kingston Post of the American Legion is always anxious to assist any cause which is for the benefit of the disabled ex-service men, and on the other hand, we feel that it is equally our duty to prevent as far as possible the promotion of private campaigns for the raising of funds under the guise of charity for the ex-service men.

We therefore ask the people of the city to co-operate with us in preventing such campaigns by not purchasing these daisies, or contributing in any way to this campaign.

Respectfully,
EUGENE B. CAREY,
Adjutant.
THOMAS F. COUGHLIN,
Service Officer,
Kingston Post, No. 150.

P-T. A. OF SCHOOL 7 TO HOLD COMMUNITY FAIR

The P-T. A. of School No. 7 are planning a most unusual entertainment to be given in the school building on Friday evening, November 2. This will take the features of a combination fair and circus. Exhibits of live butterflies, flowers and vegetables and dolls represented by the tiny children of the first grades will be given

A "baby" exhibit will also be a feature and prizes for the plumpest, handsomest, etc., baby will be awarded.

Dark skinned gypsies in scarlet costumes will reveal to you what the future has in store and in one room an art gallery with its exhibition of "noted paintings" will command your interest.

At the country store, many useful articles may be purchased; the ice cream booth will furnish you with cones and home made candy will be for sale at the candy booth.

Two methods of admission will be used. Admission to the building is free with a small charge for each of the seven exhibits or a combination ticket may be purchased for which will entitle the purchaser to admission to all exhibits.

HISTORY OF SCOUT TROOPS 2 AND 3

Following is a history of Kingston Boy Scout Troops No. 2 and No. 3: The Rev. Father Scully, director; the Rev. Father Duffy, treasurer; Bernard Feeney, scoutmaster; John Scully, assistant scoutmaster, as compiled by the Boy Scout record keeper:

"The Boy Scouts of St. Mary's became an organization on May 10, 1922, when it was registered with the many other troops as a branch of the Boy Scouts of America.

"The need of such an organization was long felt and it was with the purpose of finding a way to bring the boys to a closer understanding of their duty to God and country as the citizens of the morrow, that led to the organization of Troops 2 and 3 in the parish.

"At a meeting held in the school hall the boys signified their willingness to help this movement along by joining the Scouts The result of meeting was the forming of the two troops that we now have. The first troop or Troop No. 3 as it is called is composed of the boys who were the oldest and the larger physically while the younger and smaller boys were placed in the second troop which is called Troop No. 2. The number of boys who joined was 76 but after a weeding out we had 64 left.

"The boys were under the supervision of the Rev Fathers Scully and Fagan, whose leadership did much to promote the welfare of the Scouts. The scoutmasters under Fathers Scully and Fagan were Louis Netter and William Dwyer.

"At the first meeting of the Scouts, patrols were formed and uniforms were ordered which were of the regulation Boy Scout type with a blue kerchief. The uniforms were received within a short time and we can boast that all our Scouts are uniformed.

"During the first year the boys were active in athletics and all matters pertaining to Scouting. The basketball league was a source of joy to all the Scouts, who will have a hard time forgetting the good times that were had by all. However, during its first year the Scouts lost one of their truest friends and hardest workers when the Rev. Father Fagan was transferred to another parish. With the removal of Father Fagan we received in the Rev. Father Keane another true friend of Scouting who has instilled himself into the hearts of the Scouts.

"With the resignation of Messrs. Netter and Dwyer, the charge of the Scouts was given to Bernard Feeney. The month of August, 1923, found the Scouts striving to build up a baseball team. The team was finally chosen and in its most important game met defeat at the hands of the Scouts representing Camp Rip Van Winkle in a game played in Palenville by a 11-4 score.

"The boys are working very diligently to prepare for their second class tests and then the final test for the right to be called a first class Scout. The capturing of a few prizes along a line that I dare not disclose is another of the aims that rest in the heart of each member of the Boy Scouts of St. Mary's, Kingston.

"Our meetings are a scene of 'snappy' business and of great drilling finished with few games and last but not least the lessons in scout life has its place on the program.

"The Scouts in Troops 2 and 3 made their first public appearance on Labor Day when they participated in the Ulster County Boy Scouts field day, which was held at Saugerties A delegation of 24 of our boys went by bus to Saugerties where they marched in the parade held before the citizens of that village. We are proud of our record for that day; for we were the largest visiting troop present; and point two, we were the second largest troop in that line of march.

"At present we are preparing to spring some surprises so watch your laurels."

SAUGERTIES READY FOR SCOUT DRIVE

The latest developments in the Boy Scout Campaign took place Thursday night at Saugerties where an enthusiastic group met and went into details of budget and other details.

Scout Executive Nesslage and Commissioner Gordon were met at the Community House by Chairman F. S. Van Voorhis and Committeemen Dr. Guy Axtel, J. W. Lackey, Charles Coon, Dr. T. F. O'Dea, Thomas Thornton, Benjamin F. Crump, Albert Cainwright, R. F. Overbagh and John Hayes.

The men had on hand a prospect list of 1,200 names and lost no time in expressing their willingness to cooperate from that end of the county. The following organization was completed:

Society Notes

A Miscellaneous Shower.

A miscellaneous shower was given Saturday last by Mrs. Arthur Smith of Ellenville for her daughter, Miss Christine, whose engagement was recently announced. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all. Miss Smith was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Little Garden Club.

The last meeting of the season of the Society of Little Gardens was held this week at the home of Mrs. E W. Hathaway on Linderman avenue. Mrs. Hathaway was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Edward N. Winter. The meeting was largely attended. There were excellent papers, one on "The Cat Bird," another on "The Blue Jay." Mrs. Daniel Connelly gave a particularly interesting and valuable paper, for this season, on "Bulbs." Later in the afternoon delicious refreshments were served, after which the Club adjourned to meet the last Friday in January. Mrs. Connelly's Paper will appear later in The Freeman.

Davis-Dunbar.

A charming autumn wedding was solemnized Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Dunbar of No. 82 Brewster street, when their daughter, Miss Catherine Dunbar, became the bride of Clifford Davis of Ashokan. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. H. Moser, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, in the presence of about one hundred guests. The house had been artistically decorated for the occasion with chrysanthemums and vines, and as the wedding party entered the parlors Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Mrs. DeVall Dunbar on the piano. During the ceremony the bride's cousin, Raymond Willmott, sang charmingly, "O Promise Me." The bride was beautifully gowned in white canton crepe and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Beatrice Dunbar, as bridesmaid, who was gowned in pink canton crepe and carried a bouquet of roses. The four maids of honor, the Misses Margaret Willmott, Ruth McKeown, Mabelle Hudler and Ethel Dunbar, were attired in gowns of pastelle shades and carried roses. The best man was Wilford Allen of New York city. Following the ceremony a reception was held and later Mr. and Mrs. Davis left on a honeymoon trip to Syracuse and other points of interest, and upon their return will reside at Ashokan, where a newly furnished home awaits them. The bride was the recipient of a number of costly and artistic gifts. At the reception Mrs. Daly catered. Both Mr. and Mrs. Davis are popular young folks and have the well wishes of a host of friends for a long and prosperous married life.

Atkins-Jones.

A large assemblage gathered at the Holy Cross Church Sunday, October 21, at 5:30 p. m. where one of the prettiest fall weddings was solemnized by the Rev. Gregory Mabry, uniting in marriage Miss Helen M. Jones to William C. Atkins. To the wedding strains of Lohengrin the bridal party marched up the aisle, while the bride-to-be marched to the altar on the arm of her uncle, who gave her away to the groom. Te bride was attired in a beautiful charming gown of white satin with white slippers to match and wearing a silk illusion veil with a bridal wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Miss Irene Van Buren, a cousin of the groom, acted as maid of honor and was gowned in a beautiful gray canton crepe, wearing slippers and picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of yellow and white carnations and chrysanthemums. Miss Edna Lord and Frances Powell were the two bridesmaids and carried a bouquet of yellow and white carnations and chrysanthemums and were gowned in gold with picture hats to match and wearing white kid slippers. The groom's only attendant was Aaron Osterhoudt, a cousin of the groom. After the ceremony, forty-five of the guests departed to the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. George Mackey, 63 Gage street, where a bountiful supper was served and reception held. Among those present were Mrs. Atkins, Irene Van Buren, Frances Powell, Mrs. S. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McLaughlin and daughter Roberta, Mrs. Moxsen, Walter Jones. Edna Lord, Vincent Van Bramer, Gladys Clayton, Helen Wolfersteig, Milford Wendland, Raymond Alwardt, Raymond Dubois, Emma Adams, Ruth Gardiner, Matilda Gardiner, Beatrice Lord, Minnie Schoonmaker, Kenneth Jones, Verna Emmick, George Jones, Clayton Mackey, Cleon Mackey, Celestan Mackey and Mr. and Mrs. George Mackey, all of this city. Among the out of town guests were Matthew Deyo and son Schuyler of St. Remy, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harvey, Elmer Harvey, LeRoy Harvey, Donald Harvey, Robert Harvey, Gladys Harvey and Byron Deyo, all of Eddyville; Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Deyo of Conn., Mrs. Osterhoudt, son and daughter also Aaron Osterhoudt, all of Long Island City. The groom's gift to the best man was a leather bill case with compartments for stamps and change and memorandum pad. The bride's gifts to her attendants were sterling silver jewelry cases. At an early hour in the morning the guests departed for their homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Atkins many years of happy married life. They were the recipients of many beautiful and costly gifts including cut glass, silverware and money. After an extended honeymoon trip to Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Connecticut, they will be at home at 86 Farrelly street.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 26—A break of over five points in Famous Players at sixty, featured trading at the opening of the stock market today. The general list was irregular with advances and declines about evenly divided.

Stocks in the forenoon trading made only a half hearted response to the publication of additional information regarding this country's willingness to take part in an international economic conference of all Allies to hasten the solution of the reparations problem. Prices were generally higher, but traders were in no hurry to discount the favorable possibilities which such a gathering implies pending the French attitude in this matter.

Weak spots were uncovered in increasing number in the afternoon trading, causing heaviness throughout the list, selling pressure was applied against all classes of stocks, influence by further sharp break in some of the leading issues.

The Deserter.

Cupid is a mean little angel who meddles with other people's affairs, and after getting them all tangled up in an inextricable mess of disillusion, misunderstanding, jealously, disappointment and deceit, leaves them to get out of their troubles the best way they can.

Bread One Eats.

If all the bread the average person eats in a year were baked in one loaf, it would take three strong men to lift it and a horse to pull it. The weight of the loaf would be 397 pounds.

FORBES DENIES GRAFT CHARGES

While Department Of Justice Seeks Basis For Criminal Prosecutions —Coolidge Tells Daugherty To Use Own Judgment.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former director of the United States veterans bureau, today issued a sweeping denial of all charges of corruption and bribery brought against him during the senatorial investigation of his administration.

Appealing to the public to withhold judgment until he is able to present his defense, Colonel Forbes branded as "utterly and absolutely false" each specific charge of corruption made against him by Elias H. Mortimer, of Philadelphia, in testifying before a senate committee investigating the Veterans Bureau.

While Forbes was issuing his denial of the corruption charges, officials of the department of justice began the consideration of evidence already submitted to the senate committee with a view to launching criminal prosecutions if it can be corroborated. No action, however, will be taken until more substantial proof of graft is shown than has as yet been revealed, it was said, officially.

The veterans bureau "scandal" already has been the subject of a White House conference between President Coolidge and Attorney General Daugherty. The matter was thoroughly discussed by the president, who is reported to have instructed the attorney general to take whatever legal steps he thought the situation warranted.

SPOOKS TO PROWL AT Y. W. ROOMS

Two old-fashioned Hallowe'en parties are scheduled to be held at the Y. W. C. A. next week, one on Monday evening from 6:45 to 8:30 o'clock, for the grade school girl reserves, and the other on Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock, for the older girls. Both promise to be parties of unusual interest with spooks prowling and mysterious games befitting the occasion. Many of the guests will come in costume.

The association issues a cordial invitation to the young women of Kingston to attend the Hallowe'en festivities. Any grade school girl of twelve years of age or over is welcome on Monday evening, while the Tuesday party is exclusively for the older girls. Mrs. J. Allan Wood is chairman of the committee in charge of program and refreshments and will be ably assisted by other members of the association.

MY OWN TO MEET ZEV IN LATONIA CHAMPIONSHIP

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 26.—Reports received here from the Laurel, Maryland, track are that My Own will not start in the $25,000 Washington Handicap tomorrow but will be held in reserve for the Latonia Championship the following Saturday. It is expecter that My Own will try conclusions with Zev, American champion, on that occasion.

It was also rumored that the two great rivals will meet in a match race at Pimlico on or about November 10.

WALLACE AND MRS. STOKES TO TAKE WITNESS STAND

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 26.—In defense of her honor, Helen Elwood Stokes, beautiful young wife of the 73 year old William Earl Stokes, will take the witness stand Monday, Samuel Untermyer, her counsel announced today when trial of the sensational divorce suit was resumed.

Edgar T. Wallace, the man in the case, will take the stand this afternoon, Untermyer said.

Wire Span a Mile Long.

In its course through Pennsylvania the Susquehanna river cuts directly through several mountains, forming what are known as water gaps. One of the most marked of these is found between Millersburg and McClellan stations on the Northern Central railroad. The river at this point is about one mile wide, and stretched across the river from one mountain to the other is what is probably the longest span of telephone wire in the United States.

The wires, four of them, form two talking circuits. They are three-eighths-inch twisted wire cables, 5,600 feet long, and have a dip of 460 feet. The cables are held by insulated iron fastenings, cemented into the rock of the mountain side.

The bearers were members of the family and the interment was in the Wiltwyck Rural Cemetery.

RUHR IS SEAT OF NEW BATTL[illegible]

Secessionists Resist In Bonn and Duisburg—Printers Seek To [illegible] Up Production of Money.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Oct. 26.—Fresh battles b[illegible] tween German police and separatists were reported from the Ruhr today.

Fighting again broke out at Duisburg, on the northern edge of the Ruhr, where the secessionists had seized the town hall on Thursday.

At Bonn the secessionists were again ejected from the town hall. They still held the public market stalls resisting efforts of German police to oust them.

French troops occupying Bonn maintained strict neutrality allowing the separatists and police to fight it out.

Bourgeois parties in the Rhine Palatinate have sent word to Berlin that they are opposed to the Socialists' effort to gain autonomy. They have pledged loyalty to the German state.

The situation in the Ruhr has grown more serious over night. All coal mines owned by Hugo Stinnes, coal and iron magnate, have been closed down in the Essen district.

The first real test of the military dictatorship took place here today when the striking printers (who quit in sympathy with the employes of Rote Fahne which was suppressed by the government) tried to tie up the currency printing presses.

General Von Horn, commander of the Reichswehr in Berlin, threatened to use force if the strikers pursued their efforts to prevent the printing of money.

Banks Fined $5.

William Banks of Connelly was arrested October 18 on complaint of his wife by Officer Prendergast and taken before Justice McKenzie at Port Ewen. Mrs. Banks alleged that her husband had struck her and put her out of the house. Banks admitted slapping his wife. He was fined $5.

Mrs. Helen E. Stokes. Mrs. Margaret W. Pell.

Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, who is being sued for divorce in New York by W. E. D. Stokes, multi-millionaire sportsman, was identified by a dilated affidavit of a Mrs. Williams as a red haired woman who visited the Bethel (Conn.) bungalow of W. Leon Pepperman, vice-president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, with Edgar T. Wallace, alleged corespondent. In court, however, Mrs. Margaret Wynn Pell, wife of a wealthy New York Stock Exchange member appeared as Mrs. Stokes's "double." She said it was she and not Mrs. Stokes who visited the bungalow. In this she was corroborated by her husband, Colonel Pepperman, and others. Mrs. Pell's hair is red and her complexion much the same as Mrs. Stokes's. The two women are of the same size. If you were on the jury, would you decide Mrs. Pell is Mrs. Stokes's "double"? Is it the tilt of the nose? the cast of the chin? the curious expression of the eyes or the little, turned-down mouth?

Miss Emily O'Neill Davies & W. H. Vanderbilt

BASEBALL GROSS RECEIPTS $67,000

The Kingston Fair Grounds, Inc., received in the fiscal year ending October 13 from rent of grounds for baseball and other games, $6,722.15. This rental is understood to be based on 10 per cent. of the gross receipts, indicating that baseball receipts in Kingston totalled over $67,000 in the past year.

A SYMPOSIUM ON THE LIVES OF CHRIST

The famous novelist Hall Caine says of Christ, "Beyond providing us with counsels of perfection and pious aspirations his teaching has been allowed to have but little relation to the material life of man, and as nearly as posible none to the life of nations. In his divine character he is wrapped in a cloud of mystery, which humanity scarcely attempts to penetrate. The reality of Jesus, His universality, the direct and practical bearing of his ideals on the world in ages past, in the present and in the future, we do not try to see. On the contrary, it almost seems as if we deliberately closed our eyes to it. "I could wish to write, God willing, such a life as would speak face to face with the modern world, requiring no subtlety of metaphysics, no mystery of dogma, no cloud of spiritual conjecture." At the Symposium on the Lives of Christ we've read, to be held at the Rondout Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening, each speaker will very briefly give some strong lesson on impressions received from the book read. F. W. Powley will speak of Burgess's Life of Christ adapted to High School scholars' requirements. Mrs. F. D. Dewey of the Catholics Pappinis, T. W. Scott of the Life by Charles Forster Kent of the Modern Critical School, Miss Margueret McCullough of Wm. Hannah's "a life inspired by the impressions of Visit to the Holy Land. Mrs. C. G. Ellis of "The Apocryphal Lives of early Christian Centuries." Dr. Ellis of "The Christ We Forgot."

THE LAST EVENING OF MASONIC FAIR

Thursday evening at the Masonic Club fair the booths did all kinds of business. Some of the refreshments were sold out before the evening was half over, but they will have an extra supply for this evening. The Paul Zucca dance orchestra was very snappy. This evening the attractions will be solos by Mrs. Feder and Arthur Rifenbary. It was announced that there would be a high diving act at 11 o'clock sharp. As this will be the last evening of the fair, the usual "fair auctioneer" will be there to auction off what is left at the booths. Everything at the booths will be sold to the highest bidder, including the attendants. There will be dancing.

Basketball Tonight.

Tonight at Griffiths's Hall the fast stepping Wilbur quintet will play Flanigan's Stars of Kingston. The Wilbur team will pick their five from such players as Don Murphy, Jack Cashin, Vince Rice, Connelly, Black, McCardle, Freer and Shick. Floyd Long, the Nick Altrock of basketball, will also be in uniform. A small admission will be taken. Wednesday night in an exhibition game at the state armory, Wilbur lost a hard fought game to the fast stepping Co. I by a score of 23-18.

Zion Entertainment Tonight.

The Zion Church entertainment will be held this evening, at 8:15 o'clock. Miss Beulah Caldwell, the daughter of Bishop J. S. Caldwell, will be the principal figure in the performance. In addition, local talent will perform. The committee has arranged to accommodate as many as possible that are without tickets. Light refreshments will be served at the close of the entertainment.

Rosendale Baptist Church.

Rosendale Baptist Church, the Rev. Elsie Myers Fults, pastor. Sunday school at 9:45. Morning worship at 10:45. Sermon theme, "Holy Mountains." Evening service at 7:30. Sermon topic, "A Wonderful Highway." Special music. Come and enjoy the services with us. Church motto, "A Cordial Welcome to Everybody."

PENNSYLVANIA IN FINE CONDITION

Would Be Referee

Babe Ruth has a brand new ambition. He wants to arbitrate ring battles. The greatest slugger of modern baseball has tried his hand at almost everything else, but nothing has provided the thrill he expects to get out of forcing exponents of the manly art out of clinches and making them fight.

Babe conceived the idea when approached the other day by a member of the committee arranging the boxing carnival to be promoted by an Elks lodge at the West New York (N. J.) baseball park for the benefit of crippled children. Babe was invited to be the guest of honor.

"All right," said Ruth. "I'll accept. I'd like to referee one of the bouts."

Horseshoe Champion

Mrs. J. F. Francisco of Columbus, O., retained her crown as women's horseshoe pitching champion of the United States in the tournament just closed at Cleveland. She is shown making the ringer that brought her victory in defeating Mrs. C. A. Lanham of Bloomington, Ill., in the finals.

Ouimet Has Come Close to Honors Many Times

Once more has Francis Ouimet tried and failed to annex the national amateur golf title. Once more has fate thrown a fickle smile at him and then walked off with a new love.

You'll recall that back in 1914 Ouimet, then a mere stripling, turned back the veteran Jerry Travers and won the amateur crown. His youth, his form, and his steady nerve gave every indication that more crowns were his. But he has never won the title since.

Once, in 1920, Ouimet threatened to the last day. He faced Chick Evans in the finals and fell only when Evans trotted the last 10 holes in 71.

Then, this year, he worked his way into the semi-finals only to fall before the masterful play of Max Marston.

Ouimet's main weakness seems to be lack of endurance. He has the skill, the courage, and a steady style, but he weakens at the closing holes. His direction becomes bad and he begins to lose strokes.

Wisconsin Coach Ryan Makes No Predictions

Jack Ryan, new coach at Wisconsin, is pleased with the spirit of his players, but makes no predictions concerning what the Badgers will do in a football way.

Most of the players are inexperienced and the squad is small. Ryan says it will take a lot of hard work to whip together a team that will compare favorably with the strong 1922 aggregation.

Needles.

Every needle is subjected to some twenty-two different processes during its manufacture from the parent wire, and the world at large is estimated to use up something like 7,000,000 needles every day.

Manager Jack Dunn

Jack Dunn, manager of the Orioles, has put over five pennants in a row for the Baltimore team in the International circuit. It is said to be a record not equaled by any manager.

Historical Note.

Betsy Ross made an American flag out of her petticoat, but it must be explained to the younger generation that a petticoat is an undergarment women used to wear in the days of the Revolution.

Refrigeration.

Refrigeration is a science that finds many uses. In mining it overcomes two great difficulties: The influx of water in porous formations and the heat of deep shafts. By freezing the surrounding earth, miners can carry their shafts through water-bearing strata, and by supplying themselves with cool air they can penetrate the earth to great depths.

Part of Time.

When we consider ourselves as merely a part of time, we don't worry so much over the loss or wastage of it.

EIGHT MORE WALTON CHARGES

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Oklahoma City, Okla., Oct. 26.—Eight impeachments against Governor J. C. Walton were yet to be voted on in the Oklahoma house of representatives before completion of action on the 22 charges against the governor.

The senate, organized into a court of impeachment, was expected today to set a date for trial.

Lieutenant Governor M. E. Trapp began his duties this morning as acting governor but refused to move his office into the governor's office until the trial is over.

"I do not feel it is proper to edge in until Mr. Walton has had his trial and not then, of course, unless he is removed from office," Trapp said.

The supreme court order issued yesterday prohibiting lower court interference with Trapp's performance of duty as acting governor was filed through the regular channels this morning.

An Oklahoma county grand jury had all the testimony of the house probing committee and many witnesses had been ordered to appear today. This testimony implicates E. W. Marland, internationally known oil operator, Alridge Blake, Walton's former counselor, Charles Page, Tulsa oil millionaire; W. G. Skelly, of the Skelly Oil Company, Tulsa; C. J. Wrightsman, Tulsa oil man, and many others prominent in state oil business.

Indictments were expected within the coming week.

INDUSTRIAL TEAMS AWARDED PRIZES

Thursday evening at the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Broadway, prizes were awarded the leading teams of the Kingston Industrial League for the 1923 season. The U. and D. Railroad team received the first prize awarded by the Chamber of Commerce. The large hand some loving cup was presented to Manager Joseph Long of the railroad team.

The Silk Mills was awarded the second prize given by Draper and Maynard, baseball goods dealers. Van Slyke and Horton's representative nine wins the third prize. This prize to be presented later is given by Charles Warren, local sporting goods dealer.

Following is the standing of the league for the 1923 season.

	W.	L.	Pct
U. and D.	13	1	.929
Silk Mills	12	2	.857

Judge Ben Lindsey

Judge Ben Lindsey, of Denver, Colo., famous Juvenile Court official, was summoned before a Grand Jury there as a result of a statement that more than 1,000 illegal operations are annually performed in Denver. In a letter he sent to the grand jurors he refused to testify, declaring he would not violate the confidences of women and girls who had confided their troubles to him.

Shortest Railroad.

The shortest railroad in the world is operated at the docks along St. Joseph's bay in Florida. Together with all its switching tracks it covers only 1.43 miles. Over 1,000,000 feet of lumber are handled over it in a year.

U. S. GAVE JAPAN $10,448,70

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 26.—America responded to the appeal for aid for Japanese sufferers in the recent earthquake disaster by giving more than twice what was asked, it was revealed today in the report of John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, to President Coolidge.

As against the $5,000,000 quota originally set for the nation by the Red Cross, $10,448,702 has been donated to date with the prospects of additional receipts approximating $500,000.

LITTLE GIRL HIT BY AUTOMOBILE ON THURSDAY

Not Badly Hurt—Simpson Struck Trolley Car.

A little girl named Hornbeck, years old, of 132 Jansen avenue, ran into the rear fender of an automobile of Frank DeCicco of No. 2 Downs street, Thursday afternoon at Foxhall avenue and Prince street but was not badly injured. Mr. DeCicco called Dr. Larkin who examined the child. It is said that the little girl ran into the street without seeing the auto.

Fred Simpson of Accord reported to the police department Thursday that his car had struck a trolley car on North Front street with slight damage to the automobile.

Sudden Change in Milk Checks Laying of Flock

Many people who feed milk in some form to their laying flock regularly have been obliged to learn one thing about the feeding. A sudden change from sweet milk one day to sour the next, or back again, causes digestive troubles as a rule, and either checks the laying of the flock or upsets the feeding rations so that the mash or grain feed varies from day to day. Buttermilk, skimmed milk, sour or curd or sweet milk are all desirable feeds for chickens, but they should be fairly regular feeds, or fed in small amounts, if a change is necessary.

Corn for Silage Must Be Cut Fine and Packed

Corn for silage must be cut fine and tramped well in the silo if it is desired to make the best quality of feed and fill the silo to its greatest capacity, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The usual length of cutting varies from one-fourth of an inch to one inch, but the latter is a little too long, as the pieces do not pack so readily in the silo, and they are not so completely consumed in feeding as the shorter lengths.

DIAN SNAKE DANCE IS FAKE

Ceremonial Exposed by Federal Inspector.

SON AND FANGS REMOVED

d news has reached Phoenix, Ariz., the widely celebrated snake dance e Hopi Indians is a fraud. To be there is a dance, and it is de- dly snaky, and there are cere- ials of keen interest to the whites rather from afar.

r at least three-score years have tales how the Indians fearlessly se and capture the rattlesnake ake him to their kivas, there to ociated with and adored till the of the dance, whereat the snake cts, gathering the rattles by the le handful, and carrying the ex- in their mouths, go through the ent mystic ritual, regardless of the s of their deadly captives. Rat- s have been seen to strike the sts on the cheek or body and hang aken away by the attendant Ante- clan members, leaving bloody nds. It has been told that the mbers of the snake clan had ered immunity to the poison and they possessed the formula for antidote of which the secret never gone beyond their own membernly this year has there been punc- ng of these time-honored myths. Indian bureau has had an inspec- E. M. Sweet, Jr., making investign- ns of the Hopi ceremonials. He had n getting affidavits from govern- t employees and from the better cated Indians. Along the same is a letter written by a young l, Otto Lomavitu, who writes from hi village that "the snake dance fake," that the snakes lose their x and poison before they are car- into the dance. "The white man does not know this, nor any outsider. The Indian laughs in his sleeves at the poor, deluded, pompous paleface."

The writer tells that a considerable number of the Hopi, especially among the Christianized element, no longer care for the snake dance. It has been discontinued in his home pueblo of Oraibi, and is being carried on in only a few other villages. He declares, "It is beyond my comprehension how a man of intelligence of the white man can wish that the Hopis should continue in this disgusting ceremony of holding a filthy snake in one's mouth for five or ten minutes at a time."

Indian Sustained.

The Sweet papers sustain the young Indian in his declaration that the snake dance is a "fake." A number of witnesses, one of them a former ex-high-priest of the snake clan, tell how, in the annual snake chase, all kinds of snakes are taken. When a rattler is found, the hunters hold the reptile while the fangs are raked out and the poison sacs emptied. Sometimes the larger teeth are knocked out. It is appreciated that the injuries heal quickly and that fresh venom will form within four days, so there is renewed inspection in the underground kiva before the snakes are brought out to the open kiva.

No preventive medicine is taken and the emetic, after the dance, is drunk mainly as a cleanser of the filth and slime left in the mouth and throat from the skins of the reptiles. Snake bite is feared by the priests as by the whites. Several tribal remedies for the effect of the venom are known.

It may be remembered that, early in the year, was a hue-and-cry over a circular "message" of Indian Commissioner Charles H. Burke in which recommendation was made to the Indians themselves that they discontinue some of their ceremonial dances that hardly agree with modern ethics. There was special reference to the Sioux sun dance, with its acute tortures, of the "give-away" festival, in which members of certain tribes have been wont to beggar themselves and their families, and of the dance with poisonous snakes. In the letter also was reference to the time that was wasted and a recommendation that seed time and harvest, at least, be spared for work, while there was reiteration of the oft-repeated warning against drugs and intoxicants.

Practices Immoral.

Possibly the Indian bureau's answer with respect to the Hopi is contained in the portfolio of papers gathered by Mr. Sweet. Copies of the evidence have been passed on to the Indian Rights association which now for at least once in its history is in full accord with the bureau. The association now is represented in the Southwest by S. M. Brosius. He is making inspection of the condition of southwestern Indian tribes and only incidentally is taking up the Hopi feature. Leaving the unprintable report merely as corroborative evidence, stating that neither the commissioner and his bureau nor the Indian Rights association is seeking to destroy any Indian customs of historical or ethnological value, he expresses his belief that the time has come when the Indian should be discouraged, at least in his abandonment to filthy and immoral practices that are known in the period of tribal license that is coincident with the celebration of the snake and some other dances of the southwestern pueblo-dwelling tribes.

Pueblo Dances Loathsome.

A noted scientist in 1915 wrote of Pueblo dances in New Mexico as "loathsome and repugnant." Cushing and others have written for scientific reading only, of some of the dance-practices of the Zuni. Possibly the mildest of the official comments on the Hopi dances is one by Miss Sarah E. Abbott, who lately retired after long sacrifice at Hotaville, "After twenty-two years of work among the Indians, I have, long ago, decided that most of the Katchina dances are not a place for a clean-thinking person."

Flat assertion is made within the Indian department that girls and boys, after careful instruction in morals in the boarding schools, go back to the Hopi villages to be engulfed in filthy practices and immoralities that too often accompany the dances. According to J. R. Whitwell, assistant superintendent and principal teacher of the Phoenix Indian Industrial school, "Unless we attend to the uncivilizing influences among the Indians, we might as well stop our attempts toward civilizing."—Los Angeles Times.

REUNITED AFTER 50 YEARS

Two Brothers Who Parted in England Meet at Detroit.

Fifty-two years ago two brothers said good-by to each other in a little town in the coal mining district of Cornwall, England.

"James, I believe the United States is the place for us," said William Hawkins, then twenty-seven years old. "You will do best by going there as I am to do."

"Perhaps," said James, "But I am going to try England for a while yet."

"At any rate, it will be easy for you to find me in the United States when you do come," William said.

When he came to this country he went to Calumet, Mich. A few years later James came to McDonald, Pa.

But it wasn't so easy to find each other as the two brothers had imagined. Forty years went by before William learned James' address. Since then they corresponded, but never visited each other.

Recently James came to Detroit. At the station he was met by a strange man, nearly eighty years old.

"This is your brother, William," said a daughter to him. And for the first time in more than half a century the two shook hands.

ARMY GETS RUSS CAPTAIN

Former Officer for Czar Enlists to Learn English.

Private John Roberts was recruiting at South Ferry, New York, for the Sixteenth infantry, United States army, when a slight, dark man applied with documents to show he had been wounded twice in the war and shot by foes of Kerensky and served in Wrangel's White army. Roberts hustled him to the Army building, 89 Whitehall street. He was Alexander Tchouvaldji, a captain in the Russian army under the late czar.

He was twice wounded when the original force attacked Germany. He fought under Kerensky and then under Wrangel. Then he went with his patrimony to Robert college, Constantinople.

As a linguist he was interpreter for the allied censorship office in the Balkan troubles. Finally he came here and obtained a job washing dishes in a Third street restaurant.

Figuring he could better master English in the United States army, he joined for three years.

FIND GELATIN IN SEAWEED

Plant Grows in Large Quantities on Coast of California.

New sources of food gelatin have been developed in Lower California, where great quantities of seaweed are being treated and reduced to a very clear and nearly tasteless vegetable gelatin of high quality, Consul Leighton Hope, Ensenada, informs the Department of Commerce at Washington. The weed gathered is known as gerideum, and as many as fifteen varieties exist along the Lower California coast. It grows at varying depths from one to ten fathoms or even deeper, and always on rocks, never in sand.

It is gathered by divers working under scientific methods with air pumps and diving bells. The weed is first dried in the sun, then boiled and exposed to a freezing temperature. It is then exposed to the sun or artificial heat, the water evaporated and the gelatinous product produced.

Thirty-Day Vacation

In April, 1916, congress granted a 30-day vacation with pay to every employee, both shop and office, of the arsenals of the United States government who had served 12 consecutive months, and this has become the standard vacation for all the government employees.

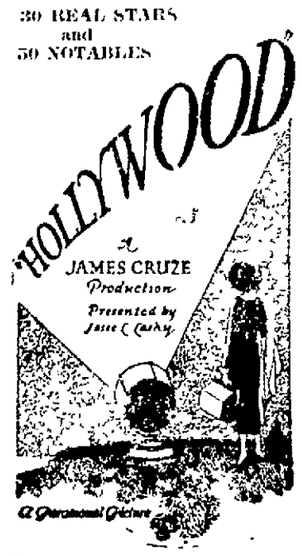
30 REAL STARS and 50 NOTABLES



NEVER before has a photoplay been blessed with such brilliancy of cast. Never before have you been privileged to see entertainment so gorgeously different. The stars, the romance, the thrills, the laughs of a life-time crowded into a single picture.
If you could only see ONE picture a year, THIS would be the one to see!

K. H. S. CONTEST AT FAIR GROUNDS

Saturday With Middletown—Webster-Hayne And Lincoln Douglas Clubs Hold Trial Debates—Albany Y. of C. Secretary Addresses Students.

Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock Kingston High School's football team will play Middletown High School. This game is a league game and should prove to be very interesting. The team has had only two nights of real work this week on account of weather conditions. On Wednesday night signal practice was held in the gymnasium. Thursday the team went through regular practice on the Athletic field. Coach Stroup will probably start the following lineup: Carroll, McLane, O'Reilly, Cassidy, Simonetti, Messinger and Bradley on the line and Goldberg, Anderson, Vogt and Tetley in the backfield.

The game will be held at the Fair Grounds and not at the Athletic Field.

On Wednesday night the Latin Club organized and elected officers. Those elected were: President, Rosenthal; vice president, Anna Gessol; secretary and treasurer, Milton Katz. The members of this club must be taking either Virgil or Cicero in their school work to be eligible for membership.

On Wednesday night the first trial debate of the Webster-Hayne Debating Society was held in the auditorium. The question debated, Resolved, that the United States should assume the full obligations of the League of Nations. The affirmative was upheld by George Hamm, leader, Edgar DeGraff and Robert Thompson. The negative by Thielpape, leader, Schroeder and Ellis. The speeches of the negative outclassed those of the affirmative, but the leader of the affirmative came back with a good rebuttal and was given the decision by the judges. The debate was very interesting and was attended by quite a few of the student body as well as members of the Webster-Hayne Society.

The Lincoln-Douglas Club also held its first trial debate. The question was resolved that compulsory arbitration be used in settling strikes. The debate was won by the negative, Y. Johnson, leader, Tannenbaum and Brurn. The affirmative was upheld by Canfield, leader, Kasnich and Baker.

On Wednesday morning Mr. White of the Munsingwear Company spoke to the students about the different vocations and their relation to the business world. He said that commerce and business are the base of the pyramid and that vocations are the apex.

Thursday morning Roy Smith, secretary of the Albany Chamber of Commerce, gave a very interesting address to the pupils. He was introduced by Principal Lewis, who said that Mr. Smith was a live wire. Mr. Smith said that his topic was "Citizenship," and that the pupils should learn what citizenship is because they soon will be the citizens and taxpayers. The real measure of citizenship is the amount of personal service one person gives to another. The service a person does for others lives after him, but the services that they do for themselves die with them. Many persons who succeed right hardest when things look darkest and when they are very nearly down and out. Knocking and pessimism are not wanted nowadays and it is much easier to smile than to frown, because it takes sixty-seven muscles to frown and only thirteen to smile, so why waste energy?

Mr. Smith wondered when people would forget petty jealousies and get together and work for the community. If we work for our small community we are also working for our state. In Athens the youths took a pledge each morning to work for Athens, to uphold its standards and never to bring shame on it by cowardice or anything else. Mr. Smith said that work done for love was the greatest thing in this world and that that was his message to the students.

The students sang a stanza of the school song and gave a cheer for Mr. Smith. Mr. Lewis said that Mr. Smith was a live wire and he certainly showed it in his speech which was very inspiring.

SEDRAN WITH YONKERS. DREYFUS WITH GREENPOINT

A couple of trades have been engineered in the Metropolitan Basketball League that have been hanging fire for quite some time, and which now promise to materially strengthen the various clubs involved.

Kingston has released its claim on Barney Sedran in favor of Yonkers. Yonkers in turn has let one of its strong defensive stars in Joe Dreyfus go to Greenpoint.

Manager Morgenweck was not able to induce Sedran to reside here for the duration of the season and as he did not care to deviate from this policy at the present time, the release of Sedran followed. Barney who has always been immensely popular in Yonkers promises to be the cog that will eventually develop that combination into one of the most feared in the circuit. With plenty of good guards at his disposal Manager Hatch Ryan has been angling for a fast, accurate forward to work with his crew and when this opportunity presented of securing Sedran he immediately seized it.

As the Greenpoint crew has been in need of help since Tom Barlow decided to remain inactive, Manager Colgan of that city has been doing his utmost to acquire the services of Joe Dreyfus, whose playing in and around Brooklyn during the past ten years has always been of a sensational nature. Only last week Dreyfus's performance in an exhibition game against the Original Celtics was largely responsible for the defeat of the noted Shamrock flyers. His acquisition should bolster up the Greenpoint defense considerably in addition to inspiring his teammates with the confidence to win hereafter.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Youthful Stylish Design.

4505. Here is a very pleasing model, with becoming lines and smart features. The style is suitable for the new figured silks, for moire satin, or jersey weaves.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. A 16 year size requires 3⅝ yards of 40 inch material. To make belt and revers of contrasting material require ⅜ yard 40 inch wide.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps for our up-to-date fall and winter catalogue, containing 550 designs of Ladies and Misses' and Children's Patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various, simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.
